ON THE COVER

Graduate student Woodrow Dantzler has dazzled Clemson fans as the Tigers' signal caller since his first game in 1998 when he had 84 yards off the bench against Furman. Now, more than 7,000 yards of total offense and 30 school records later, the Orangeburg, SC native has emerged as a candidate for the prestigious Heisman Trophy. Be sure to check out the special 10-page section at the end of the program dedicated to today's 20-year reunion of the 1981 team that won the National Championship.

CLEMSON TIGER FOOTBALL

Nick Eason ..... 5

In September, Tiger defensive tackle Nick Eason was honored by the AFCA when he was named to the Good Works Team in recognition for his community service involvement, one of just 11 Div. 1 football players so recognized. The Clemson grad student is also a three-time recipient of the ACC Top Six Award, which is also based on community service involvement.

Woodrow Dantzler ..... 10

Dantzler had 517 yards at N.C. State last month and was the first quarterback in the ACC to reach 2,000 yards rushing and 4,000 yards passing. The Clemson graduate student, who worked last summer at the YMCA, has his name next to 30 school records. He is still on pace to rush for 1,000 yards and pass for 2,000 yards this season. It would be a first in college football history.

Bowden Vacations ..... 14

It will not be a vacation today when father Bobby meets son Tommy in Death Valley. Every summer, the Bowden's, the "first family" of college football, get together on Florida's Emerald Coast for the family vacation. Be sure to see the photo on page 15 for a surprising photo that even Bobby Bowden will be shocked to see from last year's family vacation.

Brentson Buckner ..... 64

Brentson Buckner, who might have had his best year in 2000 when he had a career-high 61 tackles after starting every game for the San Francisco 49ers, is now in his eighth year in the NFL and his first with the Carolina Panthers. There is no doubt that he and Panthers' QB and former Seminole Chris Weinke will have eyes on Death Valley today.

Tiger Pride ..... 113

The Tiger Pride campaign is helping the university's athletic facilities roar into the 21st century. Improvements to Death Valley, some of which have already been completed, and a new Heritage Center will help take Clemson Football to the next level. George Bennett, the executive dir. of IPTAY said, "We want to take our facilities to the next level and show our pride by giving to this project."

1981 Reunion ..... 119

Today Clemson celebrates the 1981 National Championship with a 20-year reunion of that team. The final 10 pages of the program are dedicated to the accomplishments of the team complete with stories about Terry Kinard and the 1982 Orange Bowl game vs. Nebraska. The cover of Sports Illustrated is on page 119 and Jeff Davis is the subject of The Last Word on page 128.

Today's Game

Bowden Bowl III

As everyone knows, when Florida State's Bobby Bowden and Clemson's Tommy Bowden take the field Saturday afternoon to coach their respective teams, it will be the third competition of father and son in NCAA Division I history. The previous two occasions have taken place the last two years when the two teams have met.

The first meeting in 1999 was a festive atmosphere at Clemson as a record 86,000 fans attended the game. In addition to the hype concerning a father coaching against a son for the first time, Bobby Bowden was going for his 300th career victory. He got it, but it was a struggle, as the Tigers fought the Seminoles to the wire before Florida State came away with a 17-14 victory. It was the closest victory for the Seminoles on the way to the 1999 National Championship. Florida State won the second meeting last year in Tallahassee.

Bobby Bowden has enjoyed success against Clemson in Death Valley, regardless of the opposing coach. Father Bowden is 5-0 in Death Valley, the only opposing coach with a perfect record in the facility given a minimum of two games.

The Clemson vs. Florida State games the last two years are not the only times Bowdens have been on opposite sides of the field. In 1991, Auburn, with assistant coach Tommy Bowden, faced Southern Mississippi, with assistant coach Jeff Bowden. Southern Mississippi upset Auburn that day. Jeff Bowden will be at the scene this year also as he is Florida State's offensive coordinator.

Clemson-Florida State Series

Florida State holds a 12-2 advantage in the series with Clemson dating back to a 38-13 Florida

State win in Tallahassee in 1970. Both of Clemson's wins in the series took place in Tallahassee, in 1976 by a 15-12 score and in 1989 by a 34-23 count. Florida State is 6-0 at Clemson and Clemson is 2-6 at Florida State.

In four straight meetings between 1988 and 1993 both teams were ranked in the top 25. Both teams have been ranked in the top 25 in six of the last 10 meetings, including last year when Clemson was 10th and Florida State was fourth. That marked just the third time in ACC history that two league teams were ranked in the top 10 heading into a contest.

The three meetings between the two teams played between 1988 and 1992, were classics. In 1988, Florida State won at Clemson 24-21, thanks in part to the famous "puntrookie play", and a 76-yard punt return by Deion Sanders. In 1989, Clemson defeated a Florida State team that ended the season ranked third in the final AP poll by a 34-23 score. That is the only loss by Florida State at home against a non-Florida team in the last 17 years.

In 1992, in front of more than 84,000 fans and a nationally televised audience at Clemson, fifth-ranked Florida State defeated 15th-ranked Clemson 24-20 in Death Valley. Florida State scored the winning TD in the final two minutes of the contest behind the passing of Charlie Ward. Clemson did pick off four passes in the game, including one that James Trapp returned for a touchdown. Trapp is still playing in the NFL with the Baltimore Ravens.

The 1997 game featured one of the greatest individual duals in the history of Death Valley. Tony Horne gained 267 all-purpose yards in the game, while Florida State's Peter Warrick had 372 for the Seminoles, including a 90-yard punt return and an 80-yard pass reception. Horne's all-purpose running total is the second highest in Clemson history, while Warrick's total is the most ever against Clemson.

Florida State Overview

Florida State enters this weekend's game at Clemson with a 5-2 record. As usual, Bobby Bowden's team gets better as the season progresses. Florida State is 16-1 in the month of November since 1996. Last week they defeated undefeated Maryland 52-31 in Tallahassee. Since a 49-27 loss to #1 ranked Miami, FSU has scored 95 points in two victories.

The Seminoles have averaged 37.6 points a game this year to lead the ACC in scoring. They rank third in total offense, second in passing. Florida State has also been strong on defense, allowing just 316 yards per game.

Freshman quarterback Chris Rix has been strong of late, especially in the victory over Maryland when he threw five touchdown passes. The rookie averages 230.7 yards per game through the air and he is second in the ACC in total offense, averaging 261 yards per game. He actually leads the ACC in passing efficiency with a 158.8 figure. He has thrown a league best 14 touchdown passes.

Florida State always has many outstanding receivers. The Seminoles had three players top 100 yards against the Tigers last year, including current senior Javon Walker. He has 24 catches for 529 yards, and a league best 22-yards per catch average. The top rusher for Florida State is Nick Maddox, high school All-American from North Carolina who averages 5.3 yards per rush. Greg Jones recently had a 100-yard rushing performance in a victory over Virginia and is 10th in the league in rushing yards per game.

Kendyll Pope is the top tackler for the Seminoles with a 10.3 average. Bradley Jennings also averages 10 tackles per game. Stanford Samuels leads the club in passes defended, while Darnell Dockett and Travis Johnson pace the team in tackles for loss.

Florida State has been a model of consistency. The Seminoles have now been ranked in 206 consecutive AP polls dating to the fifth week of the 1989 season. Coach Bowden is now 320-89-4 in his 36 seasons as a college coach, including 247-57-4 at Florida State. Much has been made about Joe Paterno breaking Bear Bryant's record with Penn State's win over Ohio State last week. But, Coach Bowden is just four wins behind Paterno.

Carson Records 23 Tackles

Chad Carson had the top tackle game of his career and the third best single game in Clemson history in the victory over Wake Forest on Oct. 27. Carson had 15 first hits and eight assists in helping the Tigers hold down Wake Forest's outstanding rushing defense. The Demon Deacons entered the game averaging 235 yards per game on the ground, sixth best in the nation.

But, Carson and his teammates held Wake Forest to 193 on the day and 344 yards of total offense. It was the second lowest total offensive figure this year for Wake Forest. Carson had a lot to do with the run defense and he also contributed to the pass defense by intercepting a pass, his first career interception in 42 games as a Tiger.

Carson's tackle total was third best in Clemson history. The only higher are the 27 by former teammate Keith Adams against South Carolina in 1999 and by Jeff Davis against North Carolina in 1980. That is pretty good company for Carson as both players were not only All-Americans, but also won ACC Defensive Player of the Year honors.

Carson now has 395 tackles for his career, fifth best in school history. He moved ahead of Robert Carswell, Adams and Randy Scott in his big game at Wake Forest. Carson now trails only Bubba Brown, Anthony Simmons, Davis and Ed McDaniel. Simmons and McDaniel are still in the NFL, while Davis played five years with the Tampa Bay Bucs.

Dantzler Stats Similar to Ward Heisman Numbers

Woodrow Dantzler received rave reviews for his performance against N.C. State on Oct. 13.

N.C. State strongside linebacker Brandon

Chad Carson had a career best 23 tackles at Wake Forest. The total was the third-best in Clemson history behind Keith Adams (27 vs. S. Carolina, 1999) and Jeff Davis (27 vs. N. Carolina, 1980).

Today's Game

Jamison told The State Newspaper, "He has got to be one of the best athletes in America... That is why he is up for the Heisman. The man can run. He can pass. He has moves. He has speed. He can break tackles. There is nothing bad you can say about him."

During the broadcast on Jefferson Pilot television, guest commentator and legendary former ACC coach Bill Dooley remarked, "If I had him as a quarterback, I'd get back into coaching."

Another person who was impressed was N.C. State coach Chuck Amato. "I had the fortune to be around Charlie Ward (at Florida State, 1992-93) and Dantzler has more athletic ability. He is their football team. He's their inspiration."

He put on a display out there today that I don't know if we'll ever see again in this stadium. I hope not by an opposing quarterback. I can't imagine a better player in the country in America. We must have set a record for missed tackles on him."

Ward, now the starting point guard for the NBA's New York Knicks, won the Heisman Trophy in 1993 when he led Florida State to the national championship and a 12-1 record. He did so with an all-around game as he had the ability to run as well as pass. Dantzler has had similar success as a runner and passer this year.

A look to the stats shows that Dantzler is ahead of Ward's pace in total offense/game, touchdown responsibility per game, rushing yards per game. They have similar stats in passing efficiency and completion percentage.

Dantzler the Runner

Clemson quarterback Woodrow Dantzler is the greatest running quarterback in ACC history. He is working on making a name for himself from a national standpoint. Dantzler had 119 yards rushing at Wake Forest and now has 678 for the season. Dantzler is 31st in the nation in rushing yards per game with his 96.86 average.

That figure is second best nationally among all quarterbacks. The only signal caller with a higher average is Keith Boyea of Air Force, who has an average of 97.86 yards per game. He has just seven more rushing yards than Dantzler. Eric Crouch of Nebraska is third among rushing quarterbacks with an average of 88.67 yards per game.

Dantzler now has 2,289 career rushing yards in regular season play. That is the 17th-highest quarterback rushing total in NCAA history. Only 13 quarterbacks in history have at least 2,500 rushing yards. Dee Dowis of Air Force is the career leader with 3,612, but Antwaan Randle-El of Indiana is on his tail. The Indiana senior who started the year as a wide receiver has 3,418 entering this weekend's game.

Dantzler had his ninth career 100-yard rushing game at Wake Forest. He and Joe Burns of Georgia Tech lead all active ACC players in that category.

Dantzler is now fifth in Clemson history in career 100-yard rushing games with his nine. Raymond Priester has the record with 15, while Kenny Flowers and Buddy Gore both had 11. Terry Allen had 10.

Young Named National Football Foundation Scholar

Clemson center Kyle Young was named as one of 16 recipients of a Postgraduate scholarship as selected by the National Football Foundation and College Football Hall of Fame last Wednesday. The Clemson graduate and starting center for the Tigers the last three seasons is the first Clemson football player to receive a scholarship from the National Football Foundation since 1978 when Steve Fuller was so honored.

Young is actually just the fifth Clemson football player to receive the honor. The others are Jimmy Bell, a quarterback in 1964, Jimmy Addison, a quarterback in 1967, and Ben Anderson, a defensive back in 1972.

Young graduated Summa Cum Laude from Clemson last May and is taking graduate courses this year, his final year of eligibility. He had a 3.98 career GPA and had A's in every course but one over his four undergraduate years. He has been a first-team Academic All-American each of the last two years and hopes to be a three-time selection this year. The Academic All-America team won't be announced until Dec. 3.

On the field, Young has led the Clemson offensive line in knockdown blocks this year. He is a big reason Clemson has averaged over 400 yards per game. Woodrow Dantzler would be the first to tell you much of his success is related to Young's outstanding play. Young was a second-team All-American on the field last year in addition to his first-team Academic All-America status.

Clemson vs. Duke moved to Dec. 1

The Clemson vs. Duke football game, originally scheduled for Sept. 15 at Clemson, will be played Dec. 1 at Clemson Memorial Stadium. The contest was postponed due to the terrorist attacks on New York and Washington, Sept. 11. The game will kick-off at 1:00 PM. The change in schedule means that Duke and Clemson will meet in the major sports of football and men's basketball on consecutive days. The two schools will meet in men's basketball in Durham on Dec. 2.

Nick Eason

By Anne Miller

We've all heard the stories of the student-athletes who find the time to excel both athletically and academically. We've even heard the stories of the student-athletes who find time to fit community service into their schedule. How many times have we heard about student-athletes who suffer potentially career-ending injuries and then make a successful comeback?

There are many student-athletes whose achievements fall under one of these scenarios, but there are very few who fit into all the aforementioned categories. Nick Eason is one of the few who does. Most people know Eason as Clemson's 2000 Defensive Most Valuable Player. Last year, he was Clemson's co-leader in sacks and started all 11 regular season games for the Tigers. He won the team hustle award as well as the strength training dedication award. What few people know is what Eason accomplishes away from the football field.

In August of 2001, Eason received his undergraduate degree in sociology. Doesn't sound too extraordinary? Well, one of the things that makes this more memorable is that Eason had two years of eligibility remaining when he graduated. He finished his degree in three years and had only competed two seasons on the gridiron. Eason is the first Clemson football player to accomplish that feat.

Eason credits his family with placing high expectations on him, but even he will tell you that he surpassed those expectations. Both of his parents and many of his aunts and uncles have master's degrees, so it was expected that Eason would receive his college diploma.

"My family is a big motivation. My grandparents and parents expect a lot from me. They have always placed an emphasis on education. My grandparents didn't have a college education and got married early, which was pretty common back then. My mom has a master's degree and so does my dad so it's not like I am the first person to go to college.

"I have aunts and uncles who have master's degrees, too, so that really helps motivate me. My mom and dad always pushed me to achieve, but I don't think they expected me to graduate this early – they probably expected me to graduate in four or five years." Eason is now enrolled in the human resources graduate program and wants to be a member of the Secret Service after he finishes his football career.

Still want to hear more about how Eason is not your typical football player? Then let's talk about his athletic accomplishments. As most Clemson fans know, Eason suffered a season-ending injury in December of 2000 as the team was preparing for its Gator Bowl game. He ruptured his Achilles tendon, which is a serious injury for anyone, and an especially critical injury for a football player.

It was after his injury that Eason realized he could graduate early, by taking 21 hours in the spring and another 15 in the summer. It was also during that time that Eason realized how much he enjoyed football. "You don't know how much you miss something until you can't do it anymore. I had played football all my life and then it was cut off and I had to sit back and watch for seven or eight months. It made me think back to the times when I moaned and groaned through practice and regretted having practice.

"Then once I got hurt I wished I was out there. It kind of prepared me mentally to play this year. I am more focused and it gave me more time to think about what I want to do with my life. I knew the rehab was going to be long so I tried to stay focused and work hard. That gave me a chance to gain some weight and get stronger in the weight room since I knew I was going to be changing positions." This fall, Eason moved from defensive end to defensive tackle. Even though his statistical numbers are lower this year as the result of a sprained ankle, at 6-4, 285 pounds, he is still a talented and formidable opponent with NFL aspirations.

There's still another side of Eason that people might overlook – his community service involvement. Eason was honored in September as one of 11 Division I football players to be named to the American Football Coaches Association Good Works Team in recognition of their community service involvement. The AFCA honor is not the first time Eason has been recognized for his community service efforts. He is a three-time ACC Top Six Award recipient, a Clemson first in that no other student-athlete has received that honor thrice. He was also featured in a United Way commercial this past summer.

How did a football player and full-time student get involved in community service? "I got involved my freshman year because it was a chance to get away from school and work with people in the community. I went a few times and really enjoyed it so from then on, I started going all the time. I like to see the reaction of the kids – how happy they are and watching them play around. Plus, I like to play around, so kids like me everywhere I go."

One of Eason's favorite community service projects involved a spelling bee and haircut. Last year, Eason grew his hair out and then played host to a group of students from Westminster Elementary on Clemson's campus. At the end of the day, the students held a spelling bee with a twist. Each time a student spelled a word correctly, he or she got to cut a lock of Eason's hair. Needless to say, the elementary school students loved the challenge, and Eason loved making the students laugh.

Another one of his favorite memories was in the dunking booth. Despite a dislike for water, Eason volunteered to be in a dunking booth in Pendleton. As he tells it, "The booth was set so that if the kids hit the wall, I would fall. Well, I was falling in every time someone threw a ball. It was fun and the kids loved it."

When asked how he juggles football, academics, community service and family expectations, Eason had a quick answer. "You have to give everything – give 100 percent to everything you do. From a community service perspective, I remember when I was a little kid and the great impact that even the high school athletes had on me and how I looked up to those guys. Everything they did was what I wanted to do. Being involved in community service and spending time with kids is a chance to give back.

"There are a lot of kids in single-parent homes out there who need male or female role models. It's not like I go out every day and give 10 hours a day. It's an hour here and hour there and whenever I have a little bit of time – that's all it takes to touch one kid's life. I try to give something back. Not many people get a chance to come to college, and it's a way to show kids that if I can do it, they can do it too."

Judging from the honors he has received both on the field and in the community, Eason has accomplished his goal – he not only met the expectations, but he surpassed them. In the words of one of his coaches, Reggie Herring, "Nick Eason has been an outstanding student-athlete throughout his career at Clemson. He exemplifies the spirit within an individual that thrives off the field within the community and academically within the classroom. He has been an excellent football player on the field and is a great ambassador for Clemson and a great example for all student-athletes."

Tore White

By Shipp Daniel

The goal of any walk-on player in any sport is to earn a scholarship. They practice with the team, complete all the requirements, all in an effort to earn financial relief for their hard work. The workload and effort required of walk-ons is the same workload and effort required of scholarship players. This is a story of a Clemson football walk-on who fought for three and a half years to earn a scholarship only to finally receive it, and out of pure selflessness and generosity, turn it down, enabling another player to receive the financial aid.

The story begins on Aug. 29, 1979, when Tore White was born. The middle child in a family of five children, White grew up surrounded by competition. His older sister, Nakkita, a high school softball player, was White's main competition both academically and athletically. White played football and baseball in high school, earning scholarship offers to small schools for both sports.

While athletics was an "outlet" for White, his academics served as his top priority. "My parents and my sister always pushed me to work hard, especially in the classroom," White recalled. "Athletically, I had a couple offers from smaller schools, but my big thing was education. That's what drove me."

Due in part to the fact that his older sister attended Clemson, and has since graduated in industrial engineering, White chose the school because his focus was on education, not athletics. "I said if I came up here (to Clemson) I'd give football a shot, but I wasn't really concerned with that."

Thus the story moves from Andrews High School, where White graduated, to Clemson University, where he is currently a senior running back and specialist on the Clemson football team.

White's major is microbiology, the only player on the team with that major. "Classes are demanding," he said of his academics. "Labs can be anywhere from three to four hours a day. You've got to love it, especially since in microbiology all you deal with is microbes."

Balancing his rigorous academic schedule with football has been difficult for White, but not unmanageable. "My coaches are pretty lenient. They understand that I'm a student first, and then I'm an athlete. That was always my big thing coming to school here — student first, athlete second. That's how it's got to be in order for me to be successful."

On the football field, just as in the classroom, White has always known his place. "I have always understood my role. At times even when we got a big lead I continued to keep my role in perspective. I play special teams, and by doing that I'm helping the team, and that's what I want to do. I'm not going to overstep my boundaries. If I get some carries, so be it, if not, at least I'm helping my team."

Hence, Tore White's attitude about every aspect of his life, as will be evident through this next part of the story.

On Sept. 20, after three and a half years of being a hard-working walk-on at Clemson, his determination and dedication finally paid off. "I walked into the locker room after practice, and there was a note on my locker from Coach (Tommy) Bowden and Andy Johnston (assistant AD for football operations). It said 'Congratulations, you've earned a scholarship.'"

White's goal of receiving a scholarship had finally been achieved. But things weren't as simple as that. "When I first got (the scholarship) I was really happy and proud of my accomplishments. At the same time I put myself in a dilemma."

White's dilemma was one that is practically unheard of in athletics and perhaps even in all of life: Do I keep the money or do I give it up? "Because I had academic scholarships that were paying for much of my school, I wasn't sure I would keep it," White explained. "I always said that if I could help somebody else, I would."

True to form, he walked into Coach Bowden's office and explained that while he was appreciative of the scholarship offer, he had decided to turn it down so that another player, perhaps one who may have needed it more than he, could have some financial aid. It is because of that decision that Tyrone Lee, a junior fullback from Florence, SC, is now on scholarship.

"It was a surprise," said coach Bowden of White's decision. "You don't hear about kids turning down scholarships too often. It says a lot about his family and how he was raised."

After fighting so hard for White to receive a scholarship, and after seeing White himself fight for a scholarship, some of the coaches couldn't understand why he would turn it down. "To the coaches who fought for me, I thanked them and said that since they did fight so hard for me, it was now my turn to fight for somebody else," White said.

"That's Tore," said coach Burton Burns, White's position coach. "That's his nature, his character. He's a caring kid, a team player. That explains everything about him. He'd rather put the team, or in this case someone else, before himself. That is a gift he has. It's special that we have him around."

"I have never heard of (a player giving up a scholarship) before," continued Coach Burns. "He has worked as hard as any scholarship kid I've ever worked with. That typifies the spirit of college football — being a team player. He obtained his goal and that was his prize, not so much the monetary value, but that if he worked hard he could achieve that goal."

For White, giving up the scholarship wasn't a big deal. It's natural for him to be generous and selfless. It's his character. Although things have not always worked out as he may have planned, White has done well with what he has been given.

Tore White fought for three and a half years for a scholarship. When he finally received it, he turned it down, enabling another player to receive the financial aid.

"I remember when I was about 12 years old," White remembered, "I wrote a story for class and it said I ended up being 6-2 and at least 215 playing at Florida State. Well, I fell short of 6-2 and way short of 215. It didn't really work out."

So now we come to the end of the story. Tore White, who currently stands 5-11 and weighs 190 pounds, is a Clemson football player who has achieved his goal of becoming a scholarship player, despite his current status of walkon. His countless displays of altruism have shaped him as a person and continue to be an identifying mark of him as an individual.

After graduation, White plans to work for the Greenville County Sheriff's office in crime scene investigation. He will attend graduate school at Clemson with hopes of attaining masters and doctoral degrees. White plans to eventually become a federal agent, saying, "I just want to help people. If I can help people by being a federal agent with the FBI or CIA or something similar, that's what I want to do."

It is evident that White exemplifies the spirit of generosity. While he is certainly a contributor on the football field with special teams, his actions as an individual and a role model far outweigh any contribution anyone could ever make on the field. Coach Burns summed it up well when he said, "We need more Tore Whites in this world." It is no stretch to say that Tore White betters the Clemson football team and Clemson University.

Woodrow Dantzler

By Louis Garmendia

Woodrow Dantzler was the center of attention in late July at the annual ACC Football Kick-off, which was nothing new for the Clemson quarterback. As the conference's star attraction and top Heisman Trophy candidate for the 2001 season, he was mobbed by reporters familiar to him and some who had never talked to the Orangeburg, SC, native. One asked when all of the hype started. "The questions started like last month," he said. "There's not much more to learn about me."

And what else is there to say about Woodrow Dantzler? As one of the most publicized athletes in Clemson history, his accomplishments have been well chronicled. There's his quest for 2,000/1,000, the incredible number of records set and the SportsCenter-worthy highlights he provides on a seemingly weekly basis.

"You could visualize him doing what he's doing," said receivers coach Rick Stockstill, who recruited Dantzler with the hope that the talented youngster would develop into a star quarterback. "I knew what type of person he was and knew how hard he could work to raise his game to that level. Every time he plays I'm amazed by some of the stuff he does on the football field, but I'm not surprised that he's able to do it because he's such a hard worker."

The amazing stuff began in his sophomore season against North Carolina. Dantzler came in for an injured Brandon Streeter and led the Tigers to victory thanks to his 56-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter in which he tiptoed the sideline and outraced the Tar Heel defense. He set his first record later that year against Maryland when he broke Bobby Gage's single game total offense mark, which had stood for 52 years. Dantzler was 16 for 23 passing for 252 yards and rushed the ball 22 times for 183 yards in a touchdown for a total of 435 yards.

As the full-time starter his junior season, Dantzler shined. He reeled off electrifying touchdown runs of 75 and 45 yards as a part of his 220-yard rushing performance against Virginia, an ACC record for yards rushing by a quarterback. He reeled off four straight games of 100 yards rushing and 300 yards of total offense, a first in college football. He was on pace to become the first player in college football history to throw for 2,000 yards and run for 1,000 yards in one season until an ankle injury slowed him down. He will always be remembered as the guy who threw the ball for Rod Gardner's game-winning catch against South Carolina in the Tigers' 16-14 win. His 1,028 yards rushing that season was an ACC quarterback record.

And with his senior season yet to be completed, Dantzler has already generated a lifetime of memories. He orchestrated Clemson's biggest road win in 20 years when the Tigers upset ninth-ranked Georgia Tech 47-44. All he did was rush for 164 yards while passing for 254 yards and score the game-winning touchdown in overtime with his 11-yard scamper. He would top the performance a week later when he notched 517 yards of total offense, the fifth-best total in ACC history, against N.C. State and the 17th-ranked defense in the country.

"He put on a display out there that I don't know will ever be seen again in this stadium," said N.C. State head coach Chuck Amato. "I hope not by an opposing quarterback."

He has broken records for rushing yards by a quarterback, career total offense, single game and career touchdown responsibility this season and now owns 30 Clemson records. He is within reach of a few more before his career is over.

Over his career Dantzler has received numerous honors. In 2000, he was one of eight semifinalists for the Davey O'Brien Award and one of 15 semifinalists for national Offensive Player of the Year by Football News. He has been named player of the week at some point in his career by USA Today.com, CNNSI.com, the ACC, The Sporting News and Jefferson Pilot. He was named the 2001 midseason MVP of college football by CBS.Sportsline.com.

But it all started with a humble beginning.

Dantzler came to Clemson as a highly recruited football player from Orangeburg-Wilkinson High School, where he passed for 7,113 yards and ran for 3,134 yards in his three-year career. Although he was recruited by every major school, there were plenty of doubters when it came to his passing ability. Most wanted Dantzler to play another position, but he chose Clemson and with it the chance to play quarterback.

"I've got a lot of confidence in my passing abilities," he said during his freshman year, when he would often stay after practice to get in extra throws with coach Stockstill and the receivers. "I can hurt you with my arm and feet."

He redshirted his freshman season and finally saw the playing field in 1998 against Furman. His debut was a remarkable one in which he orchestrated the second longest drive in Clemson history, an 18-play, 8:49 marathon that consisted of Dantzler runs almost exclusively. Some of the fans in the stands wondered if he could throw the ball, but Dantzler never doubted himself.

Dantzler would go on to prove his critics wrong. In his first start of the 2000 season, Dantzler completed 16 of 17 passes against The Citadel to set Clemson records for completion percentage and passing efficiency with a minimum of 15 attempts. He scorched N.C. State this year with 333 yards through the air while completing 23 of 27 passes, a completion percentage record given 20 attempts.

Woody Dantzler has answered every challenge he has been presented with at Clemson, just as he has been answering them all of his life. Growing up as the youngest of Mozelle and Woodrow Dantzler, Jr., Woody was always the hyperactive child getting his hands into everything. A good student, Dantzler always finished his work earlier than his classmates and got scolded by teachers when he would proceed to talk to the other kids or try to distract him.

Once he tried to use a wrestling move he had seen on TV on one of his older sisters before his mother stopped him and told him he should never hit girls. Sometimes Woody's endless energy translated into stealing here and there and running errands for some of his friends. The problem is that these friends liked to hang out at the house across the street, an old run-down house. But with the help of his family, Woody was able to avoid the fast life and redirect his energy to something positive.

"Thank goodness I had two loving parents who were not afraid to let me know when I was wrong," Dantzler said in a paper written for the NCAA Foundation Leadership Conference he participated in during the summer of 2000. "I finally came to realize that this type of life was going to lead to one of two places, jail or six feet deep. I didn't want to be another statistic so I chose to make something of Dantzler, who had 517 yards of total offense at N.C. State earlier this year, became the first quarterback in ACC history to pass for 4,000 yards and rush for 2,000.

my life."

Dantzler's father decided to take him to a karate class one day and young Woodrow loved it. Finally, a chance to hit someone without getting in trouble. Before concentrating on football full-time Woody got up to brown belt and lost only one match. Actually, he defaulted because he refused to fight the girl opponent, remembering his mother's decree in his childhood that he should never hit a girl.

Many Tiger fans and opponents know Woodrow Dantzler the football player, but few know Woodrow Dantzler the person. He is often guarded in interviews with the media and would much rather talk about what a great job his teammates do than talk about himself. In fact, Dantzler wouldn't agree to a Heisman Trophy campaign unless his offensive linemen were included. He is the undisputed team leader.

"He's a phenomenal person. He's very focused in everything he does," said Stockstill. "He's been one of the best leaders I've ever been around in my entire life. What he does from a leadership standpoint makes him even more special than what he already is."

He is a big kid, the locker room prankster who watches the cartoon Dragon Ball Z in his free time. He loves kids and when his football career is over, he wants to do something to help them. Early in his college career, Dantzler's dream was to create jobs for others by opening a chain of sporting goods stores. He now wants to create a diversion for kids to steer them away from places like the crack house that sat across from his home in Orangeburg.

"I want to give back to kids who are less fortunate than I was," he said. "I want to try to set up a center where at-risk kids can come in and stay out of trouble and have something positive to do after school rather than going home finding nothing to do and getting into trouble."

Dantzler got a taste of what running a kids center would be like this summer when he served as a counselor at the YMCA Foothills Area Family summer camp. He watched over eight preschoolers that just might have had as much energy as he did, and Dantzler enjoyed every minute of it.

"I love working with them," he said. "They are special people."

Family and football have both helped Woodrow Dantzler III become a successful all-around person, but he credits one more major influence. Of all his runs and passes, yards and touchdowns, titles and awards, Dantzler names none of them as what stands out in his life.

"Giving my life to Christ," Dantzler said, is his biggest play. Even as he was suffering from a rare blood disease, Woody's father reminded his son that God had a plan for everyone. Woody never forgot his father's words and credits God for blessing him with such loving family and friends. He credits God for helping his father live despite having a blood pressure of 60 over 0 at one point. It's one reason Dantzler believes he can do anything he puts his mind to.

"With God for you, who can be against you?" he said.

As Dantzler rides off in to the sunset of a fabulous career, it's clear his name will never be far from the minds of the Clemson community.

"Woody epitomizes what a college athlete should be," said Stockstill. "The Clemson people should be proud of him not only as a football player but also for what he represents and how he represents Clemson University."

Louis Garmendia is from Mt. Pleasant, SC and is a graduate student in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Dantzler spent last Summer as a counselor at the Clemson YMCA.

Bowden Family Vacation

By Msiba Dalton

When you hear the name Bowden, the first thing that comes to mind is college football. The Bowden name has become one of prominence in this arena. Florida State head coach Bobby Bowden has made a name for himself, his teams and a reputation that his sons in coaching must live up to. Since taking over a struggling FSU program in 1976, Bowden has established a winning program, which is one of the most recognized and respected programs in the country. He has not had a losing season since his first year at FSU. For 14 straight seasons, Florida State ranked among the AP poll's top-five. Also in those 14 seasons, Bobby's teams have won 10 or more games, a national championship in 1993 and another in 1999. Since joining the ACC in 1991, FSU is 70-3 with nine conference championships under their belt. This is all attributed to Coach Bowden and the chemistry that is a part of all of his FSU squads.

The Bowden family has become the "First Family" of college football. Bobby and his wife, Ann, have six children, two girls and four boys: Robyn, Steve, Tommy, Terry, Jeff and Ginger. All four boys have at one time participated in football and three of the four have chosen college football as their occupation. The Bowden sons' involvement and accomplishments in this profession has definitely added prestige to the family name.

It will not be a vacation for Bobby or Tommy Bowden when the two coaches guide their teams today at Death Valley in the third-ever meeting between father and son.

Tommy, the third-year head coach at Clemson, is the second oldest Bowden son. He is married to Linda and the couple has two children, Ryan and Lauren. It has not taken Tommy long to accomplish in three years, what most young head coaches would like to accomplish in 10 years. When Tommy came to Clemson in 1999, he only had one thing in mind: improvement. He inherited a 3-8 team that needed its faith restored in Tiger football and won six games in 1999 and nine games in 2000. In his first year at Clemson, Tommy became the first coach since Danny Ford in 1981 to be named ACC Coach of the Year. The Tigers' improvements in the ACC standings in 1999 were attributed to Tommy and his innovative offensive attack. Last year, Tommy led the Tigers back to familiar territory in the USA Today/ESPN poll in October when the Tigers started the season 8-0. That ranking was the Tigers' first in 16 years. Tommy's leadership and inspiration tactics with his teams comes as no surprise, considering that he has Bowden genes, and a spirit that will not allow him to quit.

Terry, who has past experience in collegiate football, is currently a commentator for ABC Sports. In 1993 took over a troubled Auburn Tigers' program. The Tigers were on two years probation and were fighting to keep the program together. In that first season, Terry's Tigers went undefeated. They were unable to advance to a bowl game because of NCAA probation. When Terry took the job at Auburn, he and his dad became the first father-son combo to be coaching two of the nation's most prominent teams in college football. Jeff, who is the youngest Bowden son, is the offensive coordinator at Florida State and has worked for his father for eight seasons. Prior to joining the Seminoles staff, Jeff was the wide receivers coach at Southern Mississippi. Jeff has also been a head coach at Samford University.

There are three Bowden children who are not involved in sports. Robyn Bowden Hines is the wife of Clemson's defensive backs coach Jack Hines. Robyn is the mother of two and is a teacher at Central elementary, in Central, SC. Steve Bowden, who went to seminary and earned his Ph.D. in philosophy, is the father of five and is currently a financial planner. Then there is Ginger Bowden Madden, who is the youngest Bowden. She is a mother of three and works as an attorney.

We all know and love the athletic, football side of the Bowden family, but what do we really know about the Bowden family outside of football.

Over the years, family vacations have lost their edge because people's agendas are getting put above the importance of family.

You cannot say that about the Bowden family vacations. No matter how busy or how far apart the members of the Bowden clan live from each other, each year they all manage to make it back and celebrate together the importance of family. Clemson football's first lady, Linda Bowden had this to say about the Bowden family, "The Bowden family is one I would call an old fashioned family."

For more than 40 years, the Bowdens, including all six children and 21 grandchildren, have engaged in a tradition of taking a family vacation. The vacation usually takes place the last week of June and lasts until around the Fourth of July.

"In the era when professions tie us and families are drifting apart, it is nice to have an event like this," said Terry.

Bobby and Ann own two condos in Panama City Beach, FL and this is where the annual Bowden family vacation is held. When the Bowden kids were growing up, two condos were enough. But now that the kids are grown and have children of their own, they have had to stretch the condo occupancy to five.

Granddaddy Bobby Bowden says, "the vacations have just gotten larger every year because we've done it all of our lives. Ann and I have always gone to Panama City since we were children just like all people in Birmingham would go to Panama City. Then you have your children and as they grow up they go over there every summer. Now their families go and their children go. Watching the grandchildren playing on the beach like Tommy and Terry used to do. That's just a lot of fun watching them grow up and being together."

The Bowden family vacation is one of relaxation, and from year to year the activities remain consistent. "We do the same thing every year," Tommy said. "It's not real different. We play golf, we go to the beach, we eat and we sleep." For the Bowden men, golf is their way of unleashing all of the past year's stress and it is a way of competing for the rest of the year's bragging rights. The Bowden men usually wake up around 7 or 7:30 AM and head to the golf course. Tommy, Terry and Jeff call it quits around noon, but Bobby and Steve will golf all day, if allowed.

For the Bowden women, things are not quite that easy. "The men do their thing and the women work in the kitchen and clean-up, it is still like we all know our roles," Linda said. "The men spend a lot of time talking football." Of course the women head to the mall on several occasions, but mostly they enjoy the beach and watching the kids play together, so they can savor the memories for the future. The Bowden grandchildren enjoy the beach and each other's company. They know that this is the only time of year where they all get to visit with all of their cousins at one time.

The main activities of the vacation each year are, of course going to the beach, but the grandkids enjoy going to Miracle Strip amusement park, which has been in existence since Tommy was a youngster. The joke throughout the family is that Tommy enjoys the park more than the grandchildren. At the park, Tommy takes time out to sign autographs and takes pictures with fans. Like his father, Tommy is the social butterfly of all of the Bowden children.

Another activity that the Bowden's do on vacation is having family dinner together each night. The dinners are big, fun events and are probably the most enjoyable events shared by everyone on the vacation. Each night one family is responsible for the meal, dessert and clean-up of the dinner. Bobby recalled one of the first times Linda was responsible for dinner, "Linda on one of the first times she went down there, cooked her meal. She cooked a perfect meal, probably spaghetti and meatballs and it was delicious. Then for dessert she was trying to make everybody happy, especially granddaddy, so she served chocolate fudge cakes with ice cream. I got to asking her where the fudge sauce was and she started crying. She had tried so hard to do it right and had made my favorite dessert and I had to ask the stupid question of where the sauce was and that hurt her feelings and she started crying. Whoever does the meal catches heat because everybody kids." In response Linda said, "The Bowden family is a family of jokesters. If you can't take a joke, you better run or stay at home."

At dinner, the Bowden's love to tell stories; like the time in high school when Tommy and Terry were on the same undefeated team. Tommy was the star running back and corner back, and Terry was a fullback who also played strong safety. The only game they lost that season, the score was decided by a score of 7-6. Tommy was covering the receiver that caught the winning touchdown, and it just so happens that the guy only had one arm. The Bowden sense of humor is crude and ruthless, and they all know, "if you can't take the heat, stay out of the kitchen."

Even though the Bowden men golf just about every day of the vacation, only a couple can play the entire day. But there is one exception, the one day of the year when the Bowden men golf 36 holes and all of them fight until the end for the "Tyndall Swindle" trophy. This golf event is probably the most cherished by all of the Bowden men, especially Bobby. "One day of the year we go play golf at Tyndall Air Force Base golf course," Bobby said. "It is a great golf course with no houses anywhere around—just out in the thickets. Every year we pick out a day during our vacation to go out there. Me and Tommy will play Terry and Steve, and Jeffrey will play the first 18 holes with us and then the other 18 with them and we see who wins. We call it the Tyndall Swindle because we all cheat. That's kind of the highlight for us, we really have a great day doing that."

The story behind the "Tyndall Swindle" is that one year all the guys were out playing a round of golf and Bobby and Tommy were losing. How ironic, since neither of the two like to lose. Somehow they convinced the other team to play another 18 holes. The second game came down to the wire, but Bobby sank the final putt to give he and Tommy the win in what will forever be called the "Tyndall Swindle." When asked if that game of golf was fair, Tommy had this to say about the "Tyndall Swindle," "It is whatever your conscience allows, there is a lot of cheating going on in that game."

The thing that makes the Bowden family vacation so special is the fact that two parents, six children, along with their spouses and children, are still able to meet once a year in the same place for an extended period of time. With all of the joking, crying, generic football talk, and dinners together, the Bowdens prove without a doubt that they are a close-knit family. The love that they have for one another is admirable.

"The fact that we get everybody together and I get a chance to be with all the boys," Bobby said. "I have four sons and a son-in-law, just getting to be with them and play golf with them and then having all the 21 grandchildren there playing with each other like brothers and sisters. I think that's the big thing."

No doubt that the family is an institution made up of people who care for one another, but you just do not see institutions like the Bowden's anymore. The Bowden family's firm foundation can be attributed to their father's faith in God. He and his wife's Christian beliefs, which they incorporated in rearing their children, have carved and fashioned their children and grandchildren's lives. For this we applaud them and their time honored tradition of the Bowden family vacation.

President James F. Barker

Building A Future For Clemson

Clemson University's 14th President, James F. Barker, brought to the job a clear vision of Clemson's future that since has evolved into a new set of goals designed to make Clemson one of the nations' top 20 public universities.

To achieve that ambitious goal, Barker is focusing on building the quality of teaching, research and service programs, as well increasing Clemson's involvement in international programs, recruiting stronger students, improving the library, winning athletic championships, and providing more resources in and out of the classroom.

"South Carolina students deserve to have access to a top-tier education without leaving their home state," he said. "Building Clemson's academic, research and service programs to the level where we can compete with anyone will benefit our state, our students, and our alumni."

Considerable progress is already being made toward achieving a top-20 ranking. In the past year, Clemson was named TIME Magazine's Public College of the Year, saw the largest one-year increase in research funding in history, and its highest SAT average among freshmen.

More progress is expected this year. A new academic support center will give students access to tutoring, counseling, workshops and other resources to help them improve their academic performance. A new Rutland Center for Ethics will help faculty, students and members of the community foster skills for making ethical judgments. Facilities enhancements will include the opening of a new biotechnology complex, the renovation of Fike Recreation Center, and significant progress on the Tiger Pride athletics facilities campaign.

A 1970 Clemson graduate, the former dean of the university's College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities was named president in October 1999.

Barker earned his bachelor of architecture degree from Clemson and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in St. Louis. Before returning to Clemson in 1986 to serve as dean of the College of Architecture, he was dean of the School of Architecture at Mississippi State University. In 1995, he became dean of the new College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities, which was created after a comprehensive reorganization and has received national attention as a new model in education.

He is a recipient of the National Distinguished Professor Award of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture and served as president of that association. Barker was named Fellow of the American Institute of Architects. He also has been a partner in an architectural practice.

He has received honorary doctorate degrees from South Carolina State University and Mars Hill College and has served on the Truman Scholars Selection Committee.

As a dean at Clemson, Barker co-founded the S.C. Design Arts Partnership to support community design outreach projects, initiated the Charleston Architecture Center, established the university's "Arts in April" program, and developed a Mayors' Institute to help city leaders learn how to manage issues related to growth and development.

Despite his new responsibilities as president, Barker remains committed to the classroom. He is part of a team of instructors who teach an undergraduate course exploring "a sense of place" in architecture, literature, and history.

"I think it's important that a president never lose touch with the classroom," he said.

The Barkers — Jim and Marcia — have two sons: Britt, a student at Daniel High School, and Jacob, who graduated from the University of North Carolina, attending on a baseball scholarship, and is now enrolled in Graduate School at Clemson.

Head Coach Tommy Bowden

It hasn't taken Tommy Bowden long to bring Clemson back to its customary place among the elite programs in the nation. A team with a 3-8 record in 1998, Clemson was ranked third in the nation in the USA Today Poll of Oct. 22, 2000 after an 8-0 start. That ranking was the highest for the program in 16 years. The final #14 ranking in that same poll was the highest final listing for the program since the 1990 season.

Making a swift improvement is nothing new for Bowden. In 1997, he took over a 4-7 Tulane program and brought the Green Wave to a 7-4 mark in his first year. In 1998, the improvement continued with an 11-0 regular season and number-seven national ranking. In 1999, Bowden inherited a 3-8 Clemson team and elevated the Tigers to a bowl game and 6-6 final record. The 2000 Tigers concluded the season with a 9-3 record, its high win total since 1993.

As you can see, a pattern has formed in Tommy Bowden's head coaching career. In each of his first four years he has coached his team to exactly a three-win improvement over the previous year, believed to be a first in Division I college football history. If he brings Clemson to another three-win improvement in 2001 it really would be newsworthy, because the Tigers would have a 12-0 record, and a National Championship. Bowden already is just the third coach in Clemson history to bring the Tigers to a three-win improvement in consecutive years and is one of just two Division I coaches (John Robinson at UNLV) to do it over the 1999 and 2000 seasons.

In his first two years at Clemson, Bowden has a 15-9 record with the Tigers, and two bowl appearances. In 2001, he will attempt to do something that predecessors Jess Neely, Frank Howard, Charley Pell, Danny Ford and Ken Hatfield all failed to do: take the Tigers to a bowl game each of his first three years with the program.

The Tigers set 57 school records in 2000 and have set 98 marks in the 24 games Bowden has served as head coach, over four per game. The 2000 season produced a Heisman Trophy contender in quarterback Woodrow Dantzler, who personally set 16 of the 45 individual bests recorded by Clemson athletes last season. The 12 team records set in 2000 included total offense per game in a season (437), touchdowns in a season (55) and most points in a season (416).

Clemson was one of the most balanced teams in the nation in 2000. Clemson ranked in the top 15 in the nation in scoring offense, total offense and rushing offense. It had a top 25 ranking in passing efficiency offense. Clemson was one of six teams nationally to average more than 200 yards rushing and 200 yards passing in 2000. He is the only Division I coach to average at least 190 of each category and at least 430 yards of total offense over the last four years.

For the first time ever, Clemson had two 1000-yard rushers and a 1000-yard receiver on the same team. Defensively, Chad Carson and Keith Adams both ranked in the top 10 in the nation in tackles per game and four Tigers were named first-team All-ACC, the high figure since 1991.

His second Clemson team was one of the most decorated in history. Six different Clemson players were finalists or semifinalist for national position awards, including linebacker Keith Adams, who was one of the final three candidates for the Butkus Award. Center Kyle Young was one of the top three candidates for the Dave Rimington Award. Four players were named All-Americans and eight players were first or second-team all-conference selections.

Young and Chad Carson were both named first-team Academic All-Americans, making Clemson the only Division I-A school in the nation to have a pair of first-team selections. For the second straight year the football team had its highest team GPA on record and a record number of ACC Academic honor roll recipients. Seven starters on the 2001 team already have degrees from Clemson.

When Bowden came to Clemson, he had one simple goal — Improvement. Bowden warned Clemson supporters that the Tigers were unlikely to be bowl participants in 1999, but his main focus was to improve. Bowden's goal of improvement was reached and he was happy to be wrong about his preseason prediction, as the Tigers were invited to the 1999 Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl.

In 1999, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. He became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach of the Year.

Bowden led the Tigers to a 6-6 record and 5-3 mark in the ACC against the nation's third toughest regular season schedule according to Jeff Sagarin. The Tigers finished tied for second with Georgia Tech and Virginia in the final conference standings, a six-place improvement over the previous season, the greatest one season jump in ACC history in league play.

The Tigers also made a four-game ACC win improvement in 1999. It was just the fifth time in ACC history that a team made that big of a league victory jump. Bowden had taken over a team with a losing record and brought it to a bowl game in his first season, just the sixth coach in ACC history to accomplish that feat.

The Clemson program set or tied 41 school records in Bowden's first year, including 26 on offense. Ironically, Bowden's first Tulane team set or tied 26 offensive school records.

The improvements in the ACC standings were thanks in large part to an innovative offensive attack. The Clemson offense ended the season averaging 402.6 yards per game, nearly a 100-yard per game improvement over 1998. The Tigers scored 26.8 points per game in 1999 compared to 19.8 in 1998. Clemson's 42 touchdowns in 1999 ranked fifth best in school history.

In 1998, Clemson ranked 103rd in the nation in turnover margin, but in 1999 the Tigers were 11th, an incredible 92-place improvement in the rankings. Clemson has a 209-80 advantage in points off turnovers in his first two years at Clemson.

Under Bowden, Clemson continued its strong defensive tradition. With 47 sacks, Clemson was first in the ACC in that category for the second straight season, and the final total established a school record. Three players (Keith Adams - 15.5, Chad Carson - 12.0, Robert Carswell - 10.8) all had nearly 11 tackles per game in 1999 to rank among the top four tacklers in the league.

Adams, a sophomore that season, finished the season with 186 tackles, highest in the nation, and broke the Clemson single season tackle record held by Anthony Simmons. They all contributed to the 17th best pass efficiency defense in the nation, a unit that had 19 interceptions, ninth highest in the country.

Thanks to the wide open offensive attack several Clemson players made their presence felt in the national rankings and the Clemson record book. Sophomore running back Travis Zachery had 16 touchdowns to rank ninth in the country in scoring.

Junior wide receiver Rod Gardner became the school's first 1000-yard receiver. Gardner had 80 receptions for 1084 yards, Clemson single season records in both areas. He was 17th in the nation in receptions per game with a 6.6 mark. His yards per game average of 91.7 was 23rd best in the nation.

For the first time in Clemson history two Tiger quarterbacks threw for over 1000 yards in a season. Woodrow Dantzler passed for 1506 yards, while Brandon Streeter passed for 1466 yards during the regular season. The two diametrically opposite quarterbacks had total offense games over 350 yards, a testimony to Bowden's offensive system.

Clemson played the third toughest schedule in the nation in 1999. Four of Clemson's losses came against teams ranked in the top 15 of the final AP poll. Bowden Bowl I, the first ever meeting between father and son head coaches in college football history, took place on October 23, 1999. Bowden faced his father Bobby's top ranked Florida State team in Death Valley in front of a national television audience. The Tigers lost a tough battle to the eventual National Champions, 17-14, the closest margin of victory for the Seminoles and the fewest points they recorded all season by two touchdowns.

Making strong improvement in his first year with a program was nothing new for Bowden. In the two seasons he was the head coach at Tulane, Bowden took a team that had been 4-18 in the two years previous to his arrival, and emotionally and numerically reversed the team's fortunes with an 18-4 record, posted an 11-1 conference mark and finished the 1998 season ranked seventh in the nation by both polls. Tulane and Tennessee were the only undefeated teams in college football in 1998.

His Tulane team had a 22-game average of 39.7 points, 5.1 touchdowns, 463 yards of total offense, 270.5 yards passing, and 192.6 yards rushing. The Green Wave averaged 6.34 yards per play, and converted on third down 47 percent of the time.

Some say the most telling statistic in terms of wins and losses and the most telling statistic when it comes to coaching ability is turnover margin. The Green Wave ranked fifth in the nation in turnover margin each of his seasons at Tulane.

It didn't take Bowden long to put Tulane back on the college football landscape. In his first year, Tulane was picked last in the preseason polls of Conference USA. But, he led the New Orleans based school to a 7-4 record, a second-place conference standing with just one league loss, and set 33 school records in the process, including 26 on offense.

Tulane's accomplishments on offense were noteworthy in 1997, but their offensive charts reached uncharted areas in 1998. Tulane stood as the only school in the nation that averaged over 300 yards per game passing and 200 yards per game rushing. The team ranked fourth in the nation in total offense (507.1 per game) and second in scoring (45.4 points per game).

The Green Wave scored 40 or more points in eight contests in 1998, including each of the last seven games. In one game the Green Wave scored 72 points and rolled up 704 yards of total offense.

They converted 52 percent of their third-down opportunities for the season and had just 11 turnovers in over 800 plays.

The 1998 season saw the program post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach of the Year.

Bowden's team ranked seventh in the final AP poll and was a mainstay in the polls from the third week of the season on. Tulane had not been ranked at any time since 1979 and had not been ranked in a final poll since 1973. After Bowden accepted the job at Clemson, Tulane defeated BYU in the Liberty Bowl, 41-27.

A look to the list of coaches who had undefeated seasons in the 1990s shows two other men named Bowden. His father, Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1996 and 1999, while his brother, Terry, posted a perfect regular season in 1993. Obviously, the Bowdens are the first family of college coaching and this "Wonder Years" environment had a lot to do with Tommy Bowden's decision to enter the coaching world.

The fatherly influence of a college coach who reached 300 career wins against his son in 1999, also had an influence on other members of the family. Terry has been a head coach at Samford and Auburn, posting a 47-17-1 record at the latter. Terry serves as an in-studio commentator for ABC's college football package. Jeff Bowden is in his seventh year as wide receivers coach at Florida State, his first as offensive coordinator.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1973-74-75 and then for Frank Signetti during the 1976 season.

As a junior he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia for the 1977 season and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Signetti's staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a GA. His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State for the 1978 season.

That experience confirmed to Bowden that he was in a profession that would be his life's work. The Seminoles posted a 19-4 mark in his two seasons at Florida State.

In 1980, Bowden joined the staff at East Carolina, where he coached for the Spring practice session of 1980. That spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the Tigers running backs coach for the 1980 season. Among the players he coached was James Brooks, who went on to a 13-year NFL career and is still second in Auburn history in rushing.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In two more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 15-8 mark. The 1982 team ranked 13th in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record and a Gator Bowl championship.

In 1983, Bowden accepted his first job as a coordinator. He served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the Blue Devils quarterbacks coach and offensive coordinator. It was as the Duke offensive coordinator that Bowden made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players Bowden tutored was Anthony Dilweg, who went on to an NFL career.

After four years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Curry. It was at Alabama that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Alabama Offensive Coordinator.

In 1990, Bowden returned to a coordinator position, serving Kentucky as its offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That season he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984.

In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He would remain with the SEC Tigers for six years, his longest stint as a college assistant coach. During his tenure, Auburn was a combined 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993. Auburn had four Associated Press top 25 seasons, including a number-four final ranking in 1993 and a number-nine final rating in 1994. The Tigers were 20-1-1 in 1993-94 combined. Bowden worked under his brother Terry Bowden for his last four years at Auburn and the Tigers had a 36-9-1 record with both Bowdens on the staff.

Born on July 10, 1954, in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, who he first met when the two were in school together at Morgantown High in West Virginia. The couple has two children, Ryan (19), a sophomore at Clemson, and Lauren (16) a junior at Daniel High in Clemson.

Break From Tradition.

Traditionally, rich aesthetics, cost-effectiveness and color haven't gone hand in hand. If you wanted fashion color, you had to go to a specialty boutique and it wasn't going to be cheap. With Eastman's Chromspun® and Estron® yarns — you can have your cake and eat it too.

Chromspun solution dyed acetate yarn is available in a wide range of fashion colors and can also be produced in custom colors. It complements our popular Estron line of white yarns. Plus, we make all Eastman® yarns in the USA. As a matter of fact, Chromspun is the only colored acetate yarn made in America. That's a tradition we're proud of.

Death Valley

Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The storied edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans in 1999.

In the 1970s, 1980s and 1990s, various publications named top 10 stadiums in college football and Clemson Memorial Stadium, affectionately known as "Death Valley," has been a common denominator on those lists.

The facility's mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson's corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 208 games in the previous 59 years there (208-81-7) and has won over 70 percent of the contests. Thirty-three times since 1983, crowds have exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers who call it home, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need".

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing-there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow; and grow and grow. This year Clemson celebrates its 60th year in this outstanding facility.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A. N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium, including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he said. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten half-way through.

"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week's pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the

Clemson has had 33 crowds of more than 80,000 in Death Valley, including a record of 86,092 for Bowden field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 pm and we played at 2:00 pm." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled-the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to over 80,000 which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

Clemson Traditions

First Friday Parade

The Clemson football season kicks off each year with the annual First Friday Parade. The once-a-year event takes place on the Friday afternoon prior to the first home game (Aug. 31 this year). Floats from various fraternities and sororities and other campus organizations are represented in the parade that rolls down highway 93 in front of the President's Home in Clemson. The parade culminated at the Amphitheater in the heart of campus where the first Pep Rally of the year takes place.

The Grant Marshal of parade is featured at the pep rally. Last year, President Jim Barker was the Grand Marshal. At the conclusion of the parade route he disappeared for a few moments, only to reappear on the stage of the amphitheater in the Tiger mascot's suit. Other Grand Marshals have been Clemson legend Frank Howard, former PGA Tour pro Dillard Pruitt, Hall of Fame coach Jess Neely and noted television announcers Brent Musburger and Ara Parseghian.

Homecoming

Tigerama is the World's largest pep rally and it takes place on the Friday evening prior to Homecoming. This combination pep rally, beauty pageant, fireworks display and skit presentation attracts over 30,000 people. It was the brainchild of former Clemson legend Gator Farr, who was the master of pep rallies in the 1940s and 1950s. This year Tigerama will be held at Death Valley on Oct. 19 at 7:00 PM.

Clemson will face North Carolina on Homecoming on Oct. 20 this year. The Tigers are 26-2-2 since 1971 on Homecoming with the only losses coming to Georgia Tech in 1989 and to Virginia in 1997. The first homecoming game played at Clemson took place on Sept. 30, 1922 when Centre defeated Clemson at Riggs Field, 21-0.

Clemson has celebrated Homecoming every year since 1922 with the exception of the 1930 and 1938 seasons. Clemson has a 56-18-3 record on Homecoming games over the years, a .755 winning percentage and has outscored the opposition 1644-1010 in those previous 77 games. The average margin of victory is 21 to 13.

Howard's Rock

When the Clemson team gathers to Run Down the Hill (see Running Down the Hill) the players rub Howard's Rock because of the mystical powers it is supposed to give Clemson players. The rock is mounted on a pedestal at the top of the hill and was given to Coach Frank Howard by a friend (S.C. Jones' 19) who picked it up in Death Valley, CA. The Rock was first placed on the pedestal at the top of the hill on Sept. 24, 1966, a game Clemson won 40-35 over Virginia. The team started rubbing the rock for the first game of 1967, a 23-6 win over Wake Forest on Sept. 23, 1967. The pedestal was refurbished prior to the 2000 season.

Running Down the Hill

Running Down the Hill is one of the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint. After Clemson's last warmup, the team retreats to the home dressing room located under the West Stands. At about 12:50 (for normal 1:00 P.M. game), the team boards two buses and drives around the periphery of the stadium to the east side of the field.

After everyone is properly collected, the cannon sounds, Tiger Rag is played and Clemson charges down the hill (exactly 100 feet top to bottom) and onto the field. It is one of the most celebrated entrances in sport. The Tigers have done it for every game since 1942, except for 1970, 1971 and four games of the 1972 season.

In all, the Tigers have run down the hill 280 times heading into 2001. How in the world did the tradition of running down the hill start? There is no long involved explanation. It used to be the quickest way to get to the field. When the stadium was built in 1942 the football lockerrooms were up the street in Fike Fieldhouse.

When the players were finished getting dressed they used to walk out the front door and walk down the street to "The Hill". Coach Howard continued the tradition when lockerrooms were finally built inside the stadium because Clemson fans used to get so fired up when they gathered at the top of the hill. That's when the buses came into use to spend the trip from the lockerroom to the other side of the stadium. Clemson now has a record of 202-72-7, a .731 percentage winning mark, when they run down the hill. Clemson is 6-9 (40 percent) when it doesn't use the hill as its entrance.

The Tiger Paw

John Antonio holds a special place in the hearts of Tiger fans and in the pocketbooks of sports marketing entrepreneurs. Antonio invented the Tiger paw, the distinctive logo of the Clemson athletic teams that has become synonymous with this University's athletic success.

Antonio was an innovative account executive with Henderson Advertising in Greenville, and prior to the 1970 season, unveiled the Paw as Clemson's new logo. It has shown up all over the country on items owned by Clemson fans. Many institutions with a feline as mascot have used the logo, or an impression of it.

Antonio also came up with the phrase, "Fly the friendly skies of United," when he worked for the Leo Burnette Agency in Chicago. "I've never had a logo or an emblem copied as much as the Tiger Paw," said Antonio, now 70 and living in Greenville.

Antonio still remembers the day he made the presentation of the Tiger Paw to Frank Howard, then the Clemson Athletic Director. "He wasn't saying much at all," recalled Antonio in an article in the Greenville News by Alyce Atkinson on Feb. 16, 1997. "I kind of thought I was losing this fight."

At this point Antonio pulled out an orange football helmet with a tiger paw painted on the side.

"Coach Howard's eyes got as big as saucers and he smiled. From there it was downhill. Coach Howard wanted that helmet." Those Tiger paws are still on the Clemson helmets today.

TIGER MASCOT

Since 1954, a Clemson student has adorned the mascot suit to entertain the Clemson faithful. Joined in 1993 by the Tiger Cub, these furry creatures can be seen imitating game officials (now against the rules) signing autographs, getting their pictures taken with dignitaries like Presidents Reagan and Bush, shooting the cannon, or doing pushups each time Clemson scores. We keep pushup records. Last year, thanks to Tommy Bowden's record-breaking offense, Jon Potter broke the single season pushup record by over 300 pushups.

Running Down the Hill

What has been described as, "the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint," actually started out as a matter-of-fact entrance, mainly because of necessity.

The first 20,000 seats in Clemson Memorial Stadium were built and ready for use before the 1942 season. Less than a year before Pearl Harbor was bombed and the United States was at war.

The shortest entry into the stadium was a walk down Williamson Road from Fike Field House's dressing rooms to a gate at the top of the hill behind the east end zone. There were no dressing facilities in the west end zone—only a big clock where the hands turned, and a scoreboard, which was operated by hand.

The team would dress at Fike, walk down Williamson Road, come in the gate underneath where the big scoreboard now stands and jog down the hill for its warm-up exercises. There was no fanfare, no cannon shot fired, no tiger paw flag, no Tiger Rag played...just the team making its entrance and lining up to do the side straddle hop.

That's pretty much the way things went for the next 25 years.

Either in 1964 or 1965, S.C. Jones, a member of the Clemson class of 1919, made a trip to California. He stopped at a spot in Death Valley, CA, and picked up this white flint rock. He presented it to Coach Frank Howard as being from Death Valley, CA, to Death Valley, South Carolina."

The rock laid on the floor in Howard's office in Fike for a year or more. One day Howard was cleaning up his office and he told Gene Willimon, who was the executive secretary of IPTAY, to, "take this rock and throw it over the fence, or out in the ditch...do something with it, but get it out of my office."

Willimon didn't think that was the way a rock should be treated. Afterall, it had been brought 3000 miles by a very sincere Tiger fan.

By the mid-sixties, Memorial Stadium was pretty well living up to its moniker, Death Valley, because of the number of victories that had been recorded there. Actually, the name was first used by the late Lonnie McMillian, head coach at Presbyterian College in Clinton in the 1940s.

McMillian and the other Blue Hose coaches before him used to open the season each year by coming to Clemson. Seldom scoring (24 shutouts in 39 games) and with only three wins and four ties to show for it, his teams were getting killed by the Tigers regularly. In 1948 McMillian made the comment to the press that he was taking his team to play Clemson in Death Valley.

Running Down the Hill

An occasional reference to Memorial stadium by that name could be heard for the next three or four years, but when Howard started calling it 'Death Valley' in the 1950's, the name took off like wildfire. The Tigers celebrated the 50th season in the 'valley' in 1991.

But getting back to Howard's rock.

The rock was mounted on a pedestal at the top of the hill. It was unveiled September 24, 1966, on a day when Clemson played Virginia. The Tigers were down 18 points with 17 minutes to play and came back to win (40-35) on a 65-yard pass play from Jimmy Addison to Jacky Jackson in the fourth period. That was quite a spectacular debut for that rock.

The team members started rubbing the rock prior to running down the hill September 23, 1967, a day when Clemson defeated Wake Forest, 23-6. Prior to running down the hill that day, Howard told his players: "If you're going to give me 110 percent, you can rub that rock. If you're not, keep your filthy hands off it." Howard told of the incident the next day on his Sunday television show and the story became legend.

When Hootie Ingram succeeded Howard as head coach prior to the 1970 season, Ingram decided that the team would make its final entrance on the field out of the dressing room in the west end zone. In all home games in 1970 and 1971 and the first four of 1972 when the Tigers did not run down the hill, their record was 6-9. The team decided it wanted to come down the hill once prior to the South Carolina game in 1972. The result, in a cold, freezing rain, was a 7-6 victory when Jimmy Williamson knocked down a two-point conversion attempt which preserved the win.

The Tigers have made the entrance for every home game since 1942, except for the seasons mentioned above—280 times heading into the 2001 season.

After Clemson's final warm-up, the team goes back into its dressing room under the west end zone stands for final game instructions. About 10 minutes before kickoff the team boards two buses, rides around behind the north stands to the east end zone and debarks to the top of the hill behind Howard's Rock.

At the appointed time, the cannon booms and led by a high-flying tiger paw flag, the band forms two lines for the team to run between and strikes up 'Tiger Rag'...The frenzy starts in all sincerity...and usually lasts two and a half to three hours.

It is a tradition that has inspired Clemson players for many years.

Senior Spotlight

By Bryant Stone

Dedication. Hard Work. Commitment. These are just a few of the words that come to mind when you think of some of the Tiger seniors, who will soon be closing their football careers in Death Valley. Since their arrival at Clemson, these young men have demonstrated true excellence and balance, both on the playing field and in the classroom. These Tiger seniors also exemplify what it means to play a sport "for the love of the game." Having defied the odds, and made the Tiger football roster as walkons, these seniors in the spotlight have made use of their incredible work ethics and undoubtedly have set an example for the future walkons of Clemson football.

Bo Charpia

Bo Charpia is currently living a dream come true. "I've always been a huge Clemson fan," said Charpia, who not only was an all-state baseball player in 1997, but who also has wanted to be a Tiger since his early youth. Charpia is a reserve kicker majoring in speech and communication studies. A native of Summerville, SC, he lettered in football while earning all-state honors in baseball. Charpia walked on to both the football and baseball teams as a freshman, and defied the odds by becoming one of two players to make the baseball team out of a tryout of 60 people. "It's been a thrill to play for both the football and baseball teams. Clemson never recruited me, so by making the football team especially, I feel so honored to be a part of a team that I cheered so hard for as a kid," Charpia said. Aspiring to go into either sales or broadcast journalism, he gives thanks to a number of people who have remained close to him throughout his athletic and academic career. "I am thankful for my strong faith in God, and I'm also grateful to my parents, my grandparents and my cousin Troy for the support they've given me."

Micah Lewis

Faith, influence and commitment have helped Micah Lewis reach great heights both on and off the gridiron. Lewis has faced adversity on the football field on different levels, both at Clemson and at Chapman High School in Inman, SC. Lewis claims, however, that his strong faith in God is what has helped him defeat the sometimes overwhelming competition and circumstance. "After I walked onto the team my freshman year, a lot of guys, including myself, had a lot of stress to deal with. My faith in the Lord has definitely carried me through some tough times," he said. Lewis' faith is pretty strong. He earned all-conference honors in football his senior year and also honors as the team's captain. Lewis also competed in the shot put and discus, helping lead his high school to multiple conference championships. He is a reserve offensive guard majoring in agriculture, fisheries and wildlife biology, and he plans on continuing his passion for the outdoors after he graduates. Ideally Lewis hopes to work as a game warden or wildlife biologist. Lewis' faith may be the strongest influence in his life, but many other people have also contributed to his achievements. "My parents and grandparents are very important people to me. They have helped me get to where I am today." His high school coaches have also played very influential roles in his life, and he claims that they are the reasons "why I love the game of football and why I chose to play here." Micah added that "although players like myself may not get as much recognition as others, I definitely feel like we are a crucial part of this football team. And if you ask any player on the team the same thing, they'll agree."

Tif Miller

At 6-foot-3 inches tall and 205 pounds, Tif Miller is a force in the special teams backfield. A reserve punter and kicker from Charleston, SC, Miller attended Middleton HS, where he earned honors as a member of both the 1997 Shrine Bowl (football) and the 1998 North-South Soccer Classic. Following in the career path of his father, who played quarterback for Newberry College before suffering a career-ending injury, Miller tries to exemplify the stellar student-athlete that he believes his father has helped him become. "My dad was both my football and soccer coach as a kid, and he really helped me stay focused both on and off the field," says Miller. "He was a big inspiration." As a result in part of his father's influence, Miller plans to obtain a degree in parks, recreation and tourism management and then attend graduate school. He also gives thanks for the support his mother has given him throughout his academic and athletic career. "My parents have always helped me stay concentrated in the right place when I needed to. I'm very thankful for the support they've given me."

Matt Moler

After earning several football honors while at Dunwoody High School in Atlanta, GA, Matt Moler has continued to experience the football excellence he achieved at Dunwoody here at Clemson. Having achieved 1997 and 1999 all-county honors in Cobb County, GA, Moler was named to the 1999 Metro SuperPrep Top 50 List for Atlanta. While he currently maintains a spot on the Tiger roster as a linebacker, Moler's younger brother, Andy, has managed to attain similar football success, earning a spot as an outside linebacker on the roster at Ole Miss. Moler claims that both he and Andy have their father to thank in part for their athletic success. "Dad always offered us a lot of support," says Moler, who also credits his high school defensive coach, Reggie Perry, for the influence he had on his football prowess. Moler is majoring in accounting and hopes to become a CPA after attending graduate school at Georgia.

Russell Stuermann

Russell Stuermann is a defining example of a focused young man. Since joining the football team in 1998, Stuermann has demonstrated how his athletic focus has enabled him to become a conscientious, responsible and ambitious student-athlete. Stuermann is a reserve defensive tackle from Moore, SC and a graduate of Dorman High School. While at Dorman, he lettered in football and wrestling and was voted captain of the wrestling team his senior year. Stuermann is actually a second-generation tackle in his family; his grandfather, Russell Gulick, played offensive tackle for William & Mary and Syracuse during the 1940s. Gulick also played in a semi-professional league following college. Aside from the example of athletic achievement his grandfather exhibits, Stuermann places heavy emphasis on the focus that he claims his parents have helped him maintain. "My parents have always managed to keep me on track," Stuermann said. "Whether it's just a call to check up on me or something else, they've always been there for me, for advice or anything. They make sure that I do what I have to do." The importance of family will become an even heavier influence in Stuermann's life very soon. He became engaged on Sept. 23, and has already applied to a handful of medical schools. Russell intends to graduate with a degree in biological sciences, and the list of medical schools that he is considering include the Medical University of South Carolina in Charleston and the University of Tennessee.

Bradley Vaughan

Bradley Vaughan claims that the most important lesson he has learned from playing football is the value of hard work. "After I walked on my freshman year, I sometimes got treated like dirt. But I learned that by working hard and giving it my all both on and off the field, others will respect and take notice of what I've accomplished." Vaughan is no stranger to success. He earned all-conference honors as a defensive back while attending Mann High School in Greenville, SC, also earning all-state honors in weight lifting and wrestling. His hard work in the athletic arena has also paid off in the classroom, as he prepares to graduate next August with a degree in financial management. Through his remarkable work ethic, Vaughan has earned the affectionate nickname "Sehorn," after Jason Sehorn, a current defensive back for the New York Giants. Sehorn, like Vaughan, achieved athletic success by maintaining a strong work ethic that has helped him gain respect and recognition from his peers. Vaughan was also the topic of a recent feature story that was published in The Tiger Insider. Bradley claims that a lot of people have had significant influence on him throughout his life. Some of the people whose help he is most grateful for include his father, who graduated from Clemson, and his godfather Leighton Cabbage, who came to Clemson on a football scholarship in 1977 and taught Vaughan the value of hard work commitment. "I also really want to thank coach Herb Hand (former Clemson defensive scout team coach) and our team advisor Darren Bruce. They have both been great influences on me and have helped me stay motivated and focused both on football and on school." After Clemson, Vaughan hopes to pursue a career in the financial field.

Brentson Buckner

By Sanford Rogers

In early September former Tiger and current Carolina Panther defensive tackle Brentson Buckner appeared on a television show featuring Clemson football. During the course of the interview Buckner jokingly (we hope!) voiced his displeasure over not being featured on the back cover of the 2001 Clemson media Guide.

"I still haven't forgiven Tim (Bourret, Clemson's Sports Information Director) for not being on the back cover," said a laughing Buckner. "But I guess I will let him off the hook this time!"

The back cover of the media guide features former Tigers who have been Super Bowl Champions, first-round draft choices or Pro Bowl participants. Buckner does not fit in any of those categories, but he has had an outstanding NFL career. He might have had his best year in 2000 when he had a career-high 61 tackles and started every game for the San Francisco 49ers.

We can assure Buckner that he has not been forgotten by anyone at Clemson. After playing in the professional ranks for Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, and San Francisco, we are very happy that he is back in the Carolina's playing for the Panthers.

It is hard to believe that Buckner last donned the Clemson uniform in 1993. That year, which saw the Tigers post a 9-3 record and claim a Peach Bowl victory, was an all-conference campaign for Buckner. He led Clemson defensive linemen in tackles and was the defensive MVP of the Clemson's Peach Bowl win over Kentucky. At the time he finished his Clemson career, the three-year starter ranked third in Clemson history in sacks behind Michael Dean and William Perry.

"Time really does fly," said Buckner. "It is hard to believe that I have not played at Clemson since 1993. It really does seem like just yesterday when I was there."

While Buckner has not had much of an opportunity to travel back to Clemson in the last decade he does keep a close eye on the Tiger football team. He takes pride in following the Tigers and hopes he can dish out a few good-natured insults to former Florida State Seminole and rookie Panther quarterback Chris Weinke in the near future.

"We were waiting in the airport when Florida State lost to North Carolina," said Buckner. "Chris was telling everybody that Florida State was young and teams better get them this year. He has been kind of quiet about FSU lately. I'm hoping I can give him a hard time."

Even with his hectic NFL schedule Buckner has had an opportunity to admire the current Tiger squad from a distance. He also wonders what might have been if the Buckner-led defense of the early 1990's could be combined with the current high-powered Clemson offense.

"I was really impressed when I watched the N.C.

Brentson Buckner is in his eighth year in the NFL, his first with the Carolina Panthers.

State game on television," said Buckner. "At the half, I called Chester McGlockton (now with the Denver Broncos) and told him we would have won two national championships with our defense and this offense." Buckner stated both he and McGlockton were impressed with current Tiger signal caller Woodrow Dantzler.

"He really had it going against N.C. State and Georgia Tech," said Buckner. "I'm glad I don't have to chase him around. He looks like he can do it all."

When Buckner recalls his playing days at Clemson, he has fond memories. The quality experience he remembers during his time in college is still vivid today. "Clemson was, and is a very special place," said Buckner. "When we came off the practice fields on Thursday before a home game and there would already be a lot of RV's behind Jervey. I can still remember coming in from Anderson on the buses before a home game and seeing all the people wearing orange and all of the kids throwing footballs around. There is no place like Clemson on a football Saturday."

Mention any home game to Buckner and there is always a memory about running down the hill. But his recollection of the "most exciting 25 seconds in all of college football" lasts for several minutes. "To me the most exciting thing about running down the hill was the bus ride from the locker room to the hill," said Buckner. "You could hear the crowd get louder and louder as the buses drove around the stadium. I have never been around anything like that, before or since."

For Buckner to make such a statement about running down the hill is impressive. The eight-year NFL veteran has played in more than 100 NFL games, including Super Bowl XXX against the Dallas Cowboys.

"I have a lot of great opportunities as a professional," said Buckner. "Every NFL player dreams of winning a Super Bowl. Playing in the Super Bowl was very special, but I still have the goal of winning one. I have reached a lot of goals I have set for myself, but I'm still hoping to be a part of a Super Bowl Championship."

It was during Buckner's stint as a Steeler that he saw how special a bond former Clemson players have with each other. During the 1994-96 seasons he had the chance to team up with another Clemson great, linebacker Levon Kirkland. The tutelage Kirkland provided was greatly appreciated. They were both starters in each game for the Steelers run to the AFC Championship in 1995.

"Levon was the first person who called me after I was drafted (second round-50th player overall) by Pittsburgh," recalled Buckner. "I red-shirted at Clemson during his senior season so I had been around him before. It was like having a big brother around showing you the ropes."

"That is one of the reasons I chose Clemson," said Buckner. "There were always some older guys who came back and told us how much Clemson had meant to them. I remember seeing Jeff Davis, Terry Kinard and Michael Dean Perry at some of our games. They let us know how important it was for Clemson to win. They expected it of us."

When Buckner makes the short trip down Interstate 85 from Charlotte to see the current group of Clemson players he can deliver a message about subjects other than football. He earned his degree from Clemson in English in 1994.

"It is very important for guys to realize that there is more to life than just football," said Buckner. "It meant a lot for me to earn my degree. I feel like I would have wasted an opportunity if I had not graduated. These guys need to understand they are cheating themselves if they don't make some progress toward their degree."

Through his hard work on and off the field Brentson Buckner will always have a special place in the hearts of all Clemson fans. We can safely say that no one has forgotten his contributions to Clemson football. Maybe a center picture in the 2002 football media guide would be appropriate.

Stadium Information

Season Ticket Holders/Other Visitors

Season ticket holders and other visitors to the stadium are requested to enter Gates 1, 5, 9, 11 or 13. Persons with top deck tickets must enter the stadium via the ramps, which are located behind the North and South Stands. Ramp entrances are adjacent to Gates 1 and 13 on the South side and Gates 5 and 9 on the North side.

Handicapped

Special entrances have been provided at Gates 1, 5 and 13 for the handicapped.

Will-Call

Will-call tickets can be picked up at the ticket office at Gate 9.

Pass Out Hand Stamps

Pass-out hand stamps will be available at Gates 1, 5, 7, 9, 11 and 13 and the top decks. Any person leaving the stadium other than with a team pass must have his or her hands stamped, as well as admittance stub, to be readmitted to the stadium. Gates 4, 6 and 8 are closed prior to the games and are opened for exit purpose only.

Emergencies

First Aid stations are located at the following places: South side—Under Section J; North Side—Under Section T; North Top Deck—Under Section K; South Top Deck—Under Section E. Trained nurses are on hand during each game. Should a doctor be needed, ask any usher, who knows the seat location of doctors. Ambulances are located at Gates 1, 5 and 13.

Telephones

Pay telephones are located at the stadium ticket offices at Gates 1, 5, 9, 13, top decks.

Public Address System

The Public Address system is intended primarily for spectators information concerning the game. Please do not request the use of the public address system to make social contacts.

Restrooms

Men's and Women's restrooms are located between the stands and can be reached by exit from portal.

Lost & Found

If any article is lost or found, please report it to the Gate 1 or Gate 10 information booths.

Concession Stands

Concession stands are located beneath all stands and can be reached from any portal.

Emergency Calls

Emergency calls are received in the Security Booth. The emergency number is (803) 656-2999.

Prohibited Items

The following items are prohibited in Memorial Stadium: umbrellas, folding chairs, chaise lounges, food and beverage containers of any type, alcoholic beverages, thermos jugs and ice chests.

Notice

Solicitation for any purpose is prohibited at an athletic contest in Clemson Memorial Stadium.

Strength Training

Clemson fans look forward to seeing tough, hard-nosed football when they come to Death Valley or travel to other schools to watch their Tigers in action. But some of the Tigers' most intense competition and action doesn't take place on autumn Saturday's and it doesn't take place on a field. Take a peek into the Clemson Strength Training Room at almost any time of day, almost any day of the week, at any time of the year, and you will see the Tigers building the foundation for their pursuit of a championship.

Perhaps the most impressive characteristic of the facility is its size. Several years ago, it was enlarged to an astounding 11,000 square feet, making it one of the largest in the nation. In 1998, it was expanded to 14,000 square feet. The facility boasts two full lines of Nautilus machines and over 12 tons of weights. The large number of machines and free weights allows the weight room to be used by athletes from several other sports at the same time, without anyone having to wait in line at a particular station.

Within the last two years the dumbbell area and leg development areas were expanded as well as the nutrition and hydration area known as the Power Station. The Power Station features the energy and recovery drink to aid each athlete's recovery from intense training.

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place in the facility. When an athlete enters the etched glass doors, he is greeted by plush, wall-to-wall carpeting, walls lined with mirrors, ceiling fans, and music from a 26-speaker sound system - a worthy backdrop for well over $500,000 worth of state-of-the-art equipment.

Color television monitors are also positioned throughout the facility. These monitors are used for training and instruction, as Tiger strength coaches film the athletes and work with them on form correction.

The large staff of four full-time strength coaches, four graduate assistants, numerous student assistants, and volunteers ensures that each football player receives proper instruction on the fundamentals of strength and speed development. Training programs at Clemson are position specific and designed to meet the needs and demands of each athlete. Also, each position is appointed a full-time strength coach that serves as a personal trainer for that particular athlete throughout his career.

Hard core training and competition in the weight room and the annual Ironman Classic will help each athlete reach optimal levels in strength and speed development. The Tiger Strength Training and Nutrition Program help each athlete to become a complete player.

Vickery Hall

Vickery Hall

Since its inception in 1991, the five-faceted Student-Athlete Enrichment Program has provided its student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total student-athlete, and we are committed to coaching our student-athletes to success (C.A.T.S.) not only in the athletic arena but in the academic, personal growth, career, and service arenas as well. As an original member of the NCAA Life Skills/CHAMPS Program, we provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes in the years during college and after graduation.

C.A.T.S. Coaching Athletes To Success

Clemson University's commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all 19 of Clemson's varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition. Vickery Hall is no exception, as the $3 million structure is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson University Athletics Department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the spring of 1991 and was the first support facility in the country built solely for the all-around education of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes.

The mission of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is to monitor, guide, and encourage student-athletes to fulfill their long-term goals, and to achieve their academic and career potential.

Vickery Hall focuses on five primary areas to meet the student-athlete's needs.

ACADEMIC COMMITMENT

The academic commitment aspect of Clemson's Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has provided one of the best academic support and advising programs in the nation.

Clemson's student-athletes had a 2.80 GPA for the spring semester in 2001, the highest overall GPA on record. The overall student body had a 2.82, and the 0.02 margin between the student-athletes and the overall student population was the smallest differential on record. A record 28 student-athletes were named to the President's List (a perfect 4.0) and a record 97 student-athletes made the dean's list for the spring semester of 2001. Overall, 215 student-athletes had a 3.0 GPA or better, nearly 50 percent of the 441 student-athletes in the 19 varsity programs at Clemson.

A total of seven teams posted GPAs over 3.0 in the spring semester of 2001, the most in school history for a single semester. Six programs posted all-time highs for semester GPA, including the football, men's soccer, women's soccer, men's swimming, women's swimming and rowing teams.

The Clemson football team had a 2.58 team GPA in the spring, significantly ahead of the previous high of 2.49 set in the spring semester of 2000. Tommy Bowden has been the head coach at Clemson for five semesters and his team has had five of the top six semesters on record. Thirty-seven Clemson football players made the academic honor roll, the high total among Clemson teams for the semester.

The Academic Counselors perform a variety of duties to track academic progress. These duties include providing assistance in registration and priority scheduling, contacting faculty, personally checking classes, recording information, counseling sessions with student-athletes, providing diagnostic testing, and directing career aspirations.

One of the most prestigious programs that has received recognition essential to the growth of Vickery

Hall is the tutorial program.

Of the 160 programs certified by CRLA, the Clemson Student-Athlete Enrichment Program was one of the first three student-athlete programs in the country to be granted a Level 1 certification from the College of Reading and Learning Association, International Tutor Certification Program. The program was also honored with the National Champs Skills Excellence Award in 1999, one of six schools from across the country to be honored.

Having tutor certification allows student-athletes to be provided the highest quality of academic assistance possible. Approximately 80 tutors are hired to provide academic support in the many subject areas offered.

Many post-graduate scholarships and internships are also available to student-athletes continuing their education through postgraduate studies. Our student-athletes are provided timely information regarding these opportunities and the resources necessary to assist in the application process for either scholarships or internships.

The Dick Hendley Computer Lab is one of the areas of Vickery Hall that make it one of the top facilities of its kind, nationally.

Vickery Hall

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to provide the student-athletes at Clemson with one of the largest computer labs in the country. Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Microcomputer Laboratory. The lab is open seven days a week, for 16 hours on Monday through Thursday, and a limited time on Saturday and Sunday. During exam periods the lab hours are extended.

The lab staff has a full-time computer manager, and also graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course, as well as the many management, engineering, and business courses that deal with personal computers.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is committed to providing state-of-the-art computing facilities. New computers have recently been purchased bringing the lab to a state of the art facility. More than 50 computers are available for student-athletes.

All computers are fully connected to the internet allowing for access of computers throughout the world for research and communication.

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT COMMITMENT

One of the most important programs that helps student-athletes reach their full potential and engage successfully in this college experience is the Personal Growth and Development Program.

One of the key components of this program is the first-semester freshman transition class designed to assist the student-athlete in making a successful transition into his/her university and athletic life. All first-semester freshmen attend a semester-long series of workshops targeting the transitional issues of time management, organizational strategies, health and wellness issues, athletic issues, diversity issues, career orientation, and service training. Throughout the academic year, all student-athletes are required to attend four large-group programs, which focus on pertinent social, health, and athletic issues.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT COMMITMENT

The Career Assistance Program provides student-athletes an opportunity to fulfill career aspirations by participating in various career seminars offered by the staff at Vickery Hall. The philosophy of this program is to provide student-athletes with job-searching skills and strategies, internships, practical experience, and summer employment. These programs are designed to address specific career opportunities and acquire information about the student-athletes for each year.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center, and the Athletic Department, the staff is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with the Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program's main goal is to provide the student-athletes with job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

The Career Assistance Program is coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and focuses on resume writing and interview techniques.

SERVICE COMMITMENT

Providing community and outreach service to student-athletes and the surrounding community by engaging the student-athletes in hands-on interactive programs is an important aspect of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs. The staff of SAEP coordinates various activities each year to engage student-athletes in community outreach projects along with academic programs.

Another aspect of the service commitment is that of community service. The purpose of community service is to allow the student-athletes to become involved with the happenings of the community while giving back at the same time. Each year every team is required to perform at least two community outreach projects. Recently implemented was a new community service program entitled Success Away From the Game. The purpose of this program is to combine athletes of different sports in community outreach programs. By doing this, each outreach program participates, thus creating a diverse group of athletes with new and different ideas. At the end of each year, six student-athletes who have demonstrated outstanding commitment and contributions to the community are recognized as the Top 6 by the ACC.

LIFELine, another aspect of community service, consists of chosen football players who work together in specific community outreach projects. LIFELine has approximately 20 members along with a president, vice president and secretary. Once a month, these young men meet to discuss future projects. To date, they have sponsored Hi-Five Day, planted a garden at Helping Hands Children Shelter, and held reading programs at elementary schools. These young men have vital roles in both the community and the athletic arena.

To assist our student-athletes in becoming effective service leaders and communicators we provide service and speaking training, which anticipates the demands placed on a student-athlete when he/she might be speaking with a group of young people or also speaking with the media.

ATHLETIC COMMITMENT

Under the direction of athletic director Bobby Robinson, Clemson is undoubtedly one of the elite programs of Division I athletics.

With a generous funding base from Clemson's booster organization, IPTAY, and the forward-thinking of our athletic administration, the Clemson Tigers will continue to be a dominating athletic force, not only in the ACC, but nationally as well.

Clemson was commended for its graduation rate in football by the American Football Coaches Association in 1999 and 2000. Three members of the 2000 team who celebrated graduation in May of 2001 were Terry Bryant, Rod Gardner and Jason Holloman.

CLEMSON COMEBACKS

Last year Clemson overcame a 17-point deficit to defeat North Carolina in Chapel Hill. The victory allowed Clemson to run its record to 8-0. Clemson has overcome a 10-point or larger deficit to gain a victory or tie 18 times in its history. It is interesting to note that five of the top six have taken place on the road. The Clemson record for points overcome for victory is 28, set at Virginia in 1992. It is also the ACC record involving two conference schools. Maryland holds the record for a non-conference game with a 31-point comeback victory at Miami (FL) in 1984.

Sports Year In Review

The men's basketball team defeated #1 ranked North Carolina in February, ending the nation's longest win streak at 18 games. It marked the second time in school history that Clemson had upset the nation's top-ranked team.

- The Clemson sports program had 11 teams rank in the final top 25, the university's highest number of top 25 teams since the 1991-92 academic year when a record 13 teams finished in the top 25. Overall, it tied for the third highest number of top 25 finishes in Clemson history.

- Clemson had 31 All-Americans in 2000-01, its second highest single year total on record. The 39 achieved in 1998-99 is the only figure that is higher for one year.

- The program could boast of 70 All-ACC selections, the highest total since 1989-90 when a record 82 athletes made All-ACC. The total reached in 2000-01 is the second highest total in school history.

- Clemson upset the nation's top ranked team in two different sports during the 2000-01 academic year. The Lady Tiger soccer team defeated a #1 ranked and eventual national champion North Carolina team by a 2-1 score in October at Clemson. The Clemson men's basketball team upset a #1 ranked North Carolina team that had won 18 straight games in February. It was just the third academic year in Clemson history that the school had wins over top ranked teams in two different sports.

- Clemson had another strong performance in spring sports as four teams ranked in the top 25 in the nation in their respective final polls. The golf team finished second to tie for its highest finish ever, while the women's track team was seventh, its highest outdoor track ranking. The baseball team advanced to the Super Regionals and ranked 13th in the final poll. The rowing team, in just its third year of existence, ranked 21st in the final poll.

- Clemson had at least two All-ACC performers on 14 of its 19 teams, while nine different teams had at least two All-Americans.

- Twelve of Clemson's 19 teams participated in post-season play and six different teams that compete in dual match or game competition upset at least one top 25 team.

- Clemson was one of the dominant programs in the nation when it came to soccer. Both programs ranked in the top 10 in the nation, one of just three programs nationally to make that claim. The men advanced to the Sweet 16, while the women advanced to the Elite Eight. Both teams played host to the NCAA Tournament.

- Clemson had the ACC Performer of the Year in three of the four league track meets during 2000-01. Cyndonie Mothersill was the ACC Track Performer of the year at the ACC outdoor meet, while Jamine Moton was the MVP of the indoor meet. Jacey Harper was the MVP of the Indoor track meet on the men's side.

- Three coaches in three different sports were named ACC Coach of the Year in 2000-01. The list included Susie Lueck (rowing), Bob Pollock (Indoor track) and Ray Leone (women's soccer).

IPTAY ENDOWMENT PROGRAM

IPTAY is widely regarded nationally as the father of Athletic Fundraising. It all started in 1934 and from a private meeting of a small group of Clemson supporters has sprung into an organization that raised a record $10 million last year. The organization plays a major role in ensuring that all 19 of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships offered by the NCAA.

The organization also has helped finance facilities that contribute to the well-being of student-athletes on and off the field. Vickery Hall is a 27,000 square foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. It is a major reason Clemson student-athletes have had their highest cumulative GPA on record for five consecutive semesters.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson, currently helping more than 40 students at Clemson.

IPTAY Executive Director George Bennett has continued to keep Clemson among the best in the nation in terms of fund-raising by the establishment of the IPTAY Endowment Program. In April of 1994, he kicked off the beginning of the endowment of positions program at the 85th birthday celebration for former Clemson Coach Frank Howard. The endowments are secure with a $100,000 donation paid over a five-year period.

"This is a chance to broaden the horizons of IPTAY," said Bennett. "It gives an individual or a group of people an opportunity to endow a position that meant something during their college days, or to honor a person at a position. The money being endowed is going to secure our future as the interest is used to carry on our program forever."

The first endowment was for the head football coach position to honor the legendary Frank Howard. Howard coached football at Clemson 39 years, 30 as the head coach. During his tenure the Tigers won 165 games,

100 of which were against conference foes. "Former players and friends of Coach Howard made donations over the cost of attending the celebration program and that was enough for the endowment. Their gifts were a way of permanently thanking Coach Howard for all that he did for Clemson."

"Following Coach Howard's birthday party we began to look for an individual to help us support and promote the program and Bill Hudson's name came up. He was an outstanding player at Clemson who has been equally successful in the business world. We went to him and explained the program and its goals and that we were looking for his leadership to help get the program going, and he accepted."

Hudson, a 1956 graduate, was a three-year letter winner at tackle who played professionally for the Montreal Alouettes, the San Diego Chargers, and the Boston Patriots. He earned Pro Bowl honors in 1962. Mr. Hudson sees this program growing into a large part of Clemson's athletic funding. "When other people see information on the endowment program and learn what it is about this program will grow. Success builds on success. People who are looking to honor a friend or family member now have a great means to do that."

Besides the Hudson's family endowment four other football endowments were made and one managers position in the first year. Now there are more than 90 positions endowed. The goal of the program is to get every position endowed. "From the free safety to the number-three player in women's tennis, we hope to have every position endowed," said Bennett.

"We will likely use the Avenue of Champions as a physical place to honor these people further for the positions they have endowed. That will have plenty of space, so we will be working to have as many endowments across all of our sports."

"The personal satisfaction that they helped Clemson University, specifically the Athletic department, and that they are securing its future are the main reasons for becoming involved."

And with more involvement Clemson will have a very secure future for generations to come.

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties supplies Tiger fans with a full day of broadcasts each Clemson football Saturday. Each broadcast day has three shows, "Countdown to Kickoff," "Game Day Broadcast," and the "Football Final."

A Clemson tradition since the mid-seventies, Countdown to Kickoff is a 90-minute entertainment and interactive program produced live from the lawn at Littlejohn Coliseum at the corner closest to Death Valley. The show begins two hours prior to kickoff. Popular Greenville entertainers Love & Hudson, play host to the show that is attended by thousands of Clemson fans. Interviews, games, display items and pre-game excitement are all part of the show that has become a part of the game-day excitement at Death Valley.

The Game Day Broadcast features long-time voice of the Tigers Jim Phillips. A legendary figure in Clemson sports, Phillips is in his 34th year providing play-by-play for Clemson sports. A high percentage of Clemson fans have never heard anyone else broadcast a Clemson football game. He is one of the most respected broadcasters in the country.

Joining Phillips on the broadcast are former Clemson Hall of Fame quarterbacks Mike Eppley and Rodney Williams. Eppley was an All-ACC quarterback for the Tigers between 1980-84, while Williams led the Tigers to a record 32 victories, including bowl wins over Stanford, Penn State and Oklahoma, as a starting signal caller between 1985-88.

The Game Day broadcast begins 30 minutes prior to each game. Coach Tommy Bowden's pre-game thoughts are heard during the opening segment as well as scene setters from around the ACC and the nation. Eppley, Williams and Phillips, who have followed Clemson football for a combined 70 years also provide their pre-game analysis.

After the game, noted upstate television sports personality Pete Yanity will play host to the Football Final. Fans can hear coach Bowden as well as selected players comment on that day's game. Reports also will be presented from important games from around the ACC and the nation.

In addition to the Saturday broadcasts, fans can also follow the Tigers by listening to "Tiger Calls, a one hour program with Coach Bowden and Jim Phillips each Thursday evening. The show runs from August 30 to November 19.

CLEMSON

STUDENT POWER

© Paul Edmonds/Stone

Clemson is as strong as its student body.

On the road to becoming a top-20 public university, Clemson is working hard to attract more top scholars, provide academic support that will improve scholarship retention and graduation rates, and provide a safe, enjoyable and healthful environment.

We're off to a good start.

To strengthen student achievement both in and out of class, Clemson has these new projects and programs.

- Clemson National Scholars, a feature of a bigger, better scholarship program making the University competitive for top students in the nation.
- Academic Support Center, modeled after the successful student-athlete enrichment program at Clemson's Vickery Hall.
- Class of 1941 Studio for Student Communication, an expansion of the award-winning Pearce Center for Professional Communication.
- Fike Recreation Center renovation, a project that will give students one of the finest recreation facilities on a college campus.
- Two new dormitories that will allow demolition of outdated housing.
- Calhoun Honors College's new home in Tillman Hall.
- Expanded services and programming at the state-of-the-art Hendrix Student Center.

South Carolina deserves to have a top-20 public university within its borders, and Clemson students deserve to have the strongest all-round educational experience that such a university can provide.

By Louis Garmendia

For the past few seasons, both Clemson and its opponents knew what to expect from the Tiger offense. If it wasn't Will Solomon draining three pointers or driving from the outside, it was Adam Allenspach fighting for baskets on the inside. That inside and outside balance was what Coach Larry Shyatt was striving for each of the last two years.

But with the loss of both players to the professional ranks, Shyatt's club will evolve from the star system to a more balanced approach. With the influx of five new freshmen combined with the maturation of the last year's crop that featured two ACC All-Rookie team members the 2001-02 season will feature a fresh look and plenty of excitement.

"We have two different types of balance right now," said Shyatt, who is entering his fourth season as Clemson head coach. "We have balance in terms of depth because we recruited to our needs. We have six players capable of playing inside, all of whom are healthy as we speak, and that is encouraging compared to the last two seasons. We have three primary ball handlers, which is important in our league. We have not had that luxury the last couple of years.

"Last but not least, we have better athletes. The only commodity we don't have is experience. We can be more difficult to defend because we have more depth, more talent and the newest lineup in the league."

"We were all very hopeful last season that we would have balance in our game, and we had that for the first 10 games when Adam was healthy. There's no question that with the addition of five new players and a roster with eight first or second-year players, we enter the fall practice not knowing who to rely on in certain situations. But, we have some talented young men who are eager to fill our roles."

The cast of returnees is led by junior point guard Ed Scott, who started every game last season and played exactly 1000 minutes. For the first time in Shyatt's tenure he has appointed a captain in the preseason and the junior from Eastover, SC fills the bill perfectly. "Edward is an outstanding role model for our young players.

Sophomores Tony Stockman and Chris Hobbs will take on increased responsibility this season. The duo was named to the ACC All-Freshman team, the first time Clemson has had two selections in the same year. Clemson was the only team with two representatives on that team. Jamar McKnight, the only senior on the club, will give the team an experienced athletic wing player. Juniors Tomas Nagys and Ray Henderson will anchor the interior along with Hobbs.

Dwon Clifton is coming off a solid freshman season in which he started 17 of the last 18 games. He was initially diagnosed with a heart problem in October, but tests at Emory Hospital in Atlanta cleared Clifton to play. A September fainting spell was the result of extreme fatigue and was not heart-related.

Much of the buzz about the 2001-02 season stems from Shyatt's five-man recruiting class that has been rated among the nation's best by many experts. The freshman class bolsters the team's depth as well as upgrades its athleticism.

"It's a class that has been ranked among the top 15 in the nation. Hopefully it is a group that will soon make a difference in our program and move us to the upper echelon of the ACC. That will take a combination of both their improvement and, of course, some of the better, older players in our league moving on," said Shyatt.

The incoming freshmen are big men Steve Allen, Sharrod Christie and Olu Babalola and guard/forwards Chey Christie and Jemere Hendrix. It is the largest incoming class since the 1995-96 season, a year that included the debut of Terrell McIntyre, Tom Wideman, Harold Jamison, Andrius Jurkunas and Tony Christie, Chey's older brother. That class led the Tigers to three NCAA Tournament berths, including a Sweet 16 appearance in 1997.

"They have a distinct advantage to any Clemson freshmen in that they were here most of the summer. They attended classes and that has helped them with their confidence. There won't be as big an adjustment period in the classroom and on the court."

Two players in the group stand out. Chey Christie and Sharrod Ford both played for the United States team in the Global Games in Dallas, TX in July. Christie averaged 15 points a game, shot 61 percent on three-point shots and made the all-tournament team. Ford shot 75 percent from the field, best on the United States team.

The team will need contributions from everyone to compete in the always-tough ACC. Duke and Maryland will look to repeat their Final Four seasons with most of their rosters intact. The team will also face stiff non-conference competition including a visit to Penn State, a Sweet 16 team last season, SEC rival South Carolina, and a trip to the Virgin Islands to play in a six-team, three-game tournament prior to Thanksgiving.

The depth at Shyatt's disposal will once again allow the Tigers to focus on an up tempo attack. The Clemson offense set school records for made three-point field goals in a season (248) and per game (8.0) while averaging 74.1 points per game, the most since 1993-94. The Tigers scored 80 points or more 11 times last season, including 108 in a non-overtime game against Georgia Tech.

"I think it's the most exciting team we've had since the McIntyre-Wideman-Christie-Jurkunas-Jamison era because you've got a whole group that fans will be able to follow for the next four years. If I was a marketing expert, I would probably think this would be the absolute best time to market Clemson basketball, not only because of the significant youth and excitement and talent of the younger players, but also because of the development of a world class annex, the new Littlejohn Coliseum. I hope it is the beginning of a new basketball movement at Clemson University."

Louis Garmendia is a graduate student from Mt. Pleasant, SC and works in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Edward Scott leads the cast of returning players. After playing 1,000 minutes last year, he will captain the Tigers in 2001-02.

Head Coach Jim Davis is in a race for time. He hopes that the veteran backcourt can carry the team until the young frontcourt matures and gains valuable experience.

"Inside play will be our greatest concern," said Davis who is entering his 15th season at Clemson. "We have young, talented players, and it will take a while for them to get used to our system. This coaching staff will need to be patient. Our perimeter game, I believe, is good enough to help us 'get it done' until we can get experience inside."

"One of the keys to the season will be how quickly our inside game matures, especially offensively. Our experience on the perimeter has to carry us to allow our young post players to develop. Turnovers should be down from last year. We should be very good at taking care of the basketball."

Clemson has three starters and eight letterwinners returning from a team that finished 21-10 and 10-6 in the ACC. The Tigers also advanced to the second round of the NCAA Tournament and finished 22nd in both the AP and USA Today polls.

"We obviously want to win 20 games, win the ACC Championship and get in the NCAA Tournament," Davis said. "Our league will be very competitive this year and if we win the league this would be a great accomplishment for this team."

"The characteristics for this team will be similar to last season. This will be a team that can play up-tempo, be very creative, and hopefully be a team that can press and run. We have all of our perimeter players returning. I think Krystal Scott, Marci Glenney, Julie Aderhold, Lakeia Stokes and Kanetra Queen will all be very valuable to our team."

"Offensively, we will be explosive in the open court," Davis continued. "We will have much more of a power game. My philosophy of the game is to beat the ball to the blocks and get on the free throw line. We struggled to score on the inside last year. Our inside scoring will be better this year."

Back Court

Clemson will feature one of the best backcourts in the nation with the return of second-team All-ACC performer Chrissy Floyd, who was also a Kodak District II All-American.

"In my opinion, I think our back court is the best in the ACC," Davis said. "With returning starters Krystal Scott and Chrissy Floyd, sophomores Kanetra Queen, Lakeia Stokes and Julie Aderhold back, I think we are solid on the perimeter."

"We have quickness, shooting ability, and athleticism. I like our guard situation and how it is shaping up. This back court compares to some of the best we have ever had at Clemson. I think this will be the deepest and strongest we have had in my tenure."

Chrissy Floyd led the team in scoring for the second straight season with 16.9 ppg in 2000-01. She also led the ACC in free throw percentage and was the team leader in steals. She was second on the squad in assists.

"Floyd has been our leading scorer for the past two years," Davis said. "She has improved in every phase of the game since she has been here. She gained great experience playing with the World University team this past summer."

Krystal Scott was third on the team in scoring with 9.8 ppg. She led the team in assists with 115. Scott started 29 games last season and shot .479 from the floor. "Krystal Scott is a veteran player," Davis said. "She is always among the leaders in assist-turnover ratio in the ACC. She is a strong player and will probably be a three-year starter. She knows what we are looking for and how to direct our team from the point guard position."

Kanetra Queen played in 27 games last season. "Kanetra is a tremendous athlete and gained valuable experience last season," Davis said. "She has great leadership qualities. Kanetra creates lots of problems for opponents with her defensive pressure."

Lakeia Stokes played in 26 games last season and finished her freshman season with 3.2 ppg and 1.9 rpg. She also had 17 assists and 13 steals. "Stokes could be one of the finest to ever play at Clemson University," Davis said. "With her size and reach, she can create matchup problems for the opponents. Her slashing, cutting, driving abilities all compliment her aggressive style of play."

As a freshman last season, Julie Aderhold played in all 31 games and started three. She averaged 5.5 ppg and 2.9 rpg. She was 25-32 from the three-point line and finished the year with 23 assists and 12 steals. "Julie is one of the finest pure shooters we've had at Clemson," Davis said. "She led the team in three point field goal percentage. She has improved at shooting off the dribble and is a good rebounder from the guard position."

Front Court

At the small forward position, Clemson returns Marci Glenney and Heather Crowe from last year's team. Glenney averaged 9.6 ppg in 24 starts. She was the Lady Tigers' fourth leading scorer. She averaged 3.7 rpg and had 78 assists and 37 steals. "Marci is the most versatile member of our basketball team," Davis said. "Her tough aggressive style of play and her ball-handling abilities make her a tough matchup at the small forward position."

Crowe saw limited action last season due to a back injury. She only played in 12 games and saw 38 minutes of playing time. "Heather's outside shooting ability is her strength. She has been hampered with injuries and that has slowed her development."

Clemson signed two talented newcomers to the three position in Leah Roper and Khaili Sanders. Roper was an All-American from Gulf Coast Community College. On the inside, Clemson graduated its leading rebounder, Erin Batth, who averaged 12.1 ppg and 8.7 rpg. The only returnee to the four and five position is Maggie Slosser, who played in all 31 games averaging 2.8 ppg and 2.2 rpg.

Clemson added three newcomers, Lacey Shafer, Monica Blackmon and Tia Andrew to the four and five positions.

Sam Blackman is the associate sports information director at Clemson.

Chrissy Floyd led the team in scoring last year on her way to All-ACC honors. She returns to lead the Tigers in 2001-02.

Tiger Band

By Kevin Johnson

As we revisit a National Championship season with a reunion today of the 1981 Clemson Tigers, Tiger Band will be on the field and in the stands helping recreate the excitement for Tiger fans as it did that night in the Orange Bowl when Clemson beat Nebraska 22-15. Twenty years later, Tiger Band is still Shakin' the Southland just as it did when it played for the Tigers in the quest for an undefeated season.

Today's festivities begin with the traditional pre-game march. During the pre-game show, Tiger Band will play, "Orange Bowl March" as it moves into the script Tigers formation. While moving into the formation the band will play the "Tiger Rag" and the "I" will be dotted. Dotted the "i" today will be CoralHarper, and Willie Dean Brown.

Tom Harper was the assistant head coach and defensive line coach at Clemson during the 1981 National Championship season. He graduated from Kentucky where he was an offensive and defensive tackle on Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant's teams from 1950-53 and played in the 1952 Cotton Bowl. His wife, Coral, is representing coach Harper on the field today. The couple has five children, Evans, Crae, Tom Jr., J.C. and Dude.

Gary Brown was an outside tackle on the 1981 National Championship team. He saw action in more than 50 percent of the plays and graded 85 percent against the large Huskers front wall. He also played in all 12 games that season. He graded out with a very respectable 70 percent for the entire 1981 season. Gary Brown is being represented on the field today by his mother, Willie Dean Brown.

The pre-game show will conclude with the famous "Washington Post," "God Bless America," "Star-Spangled Banner" and the Clemson alma mater. As the Tigers prepare to run down the hill today, Tiger Band will form a human tunnel and play the Clemson favorites "Orange Bowl March" and "Tiger Rag."

For halftime today, the band will perform a show entitled "A Salute To George Gershwin." The performance is a salute to the musical genius of legendary American composer George Gershwin. Music selections will include "Summertime" from Gershwin's landmark opera "Porgy and Bess" and the symphonic-jazz masterpiece "Rhapsody in Blue."

Although this year still has great things to come, Tiger Band would like to recognize the seniors who have put in a tremendous amount of work. They have graced football fans far and wide with their musical ability and they will be greatly missed. Tiger Band salutes these students for their contributions to the Tiger Band and the entire Clemson University band program.

Though the seniors will perform for the final time in Clemson on Dec. 1 when the Tigers host Duke, today was originally scheduled to be the final home game. The Duke game will hold a special place in the hearts of Tiger Band seniors as they play Tiger Rag for the final time at Death Valley.

"It has been a special time for me to be able to lead these graduating seniors," said Dr. Goodstein of the graduating seniors. "They have exhibited extraordinary leadership and loyalty. These seniors have truly showed the best of what Clemson students are. Though they have been through difficult times, when times got tough, they stepped up to the challenge and exhibited their loyalty and determination to Tiger Band. Best wishes in the future, and thank you graduating seniors for a job well done."

Dr. Goodstein would also like to extend a special thank you to all the Tiger Band parents in attendance at today's Florida State game. "Their support of, and interest in, Tiger Band is greatly appreciated."

Tiger Band would like to invite everyone in the Clemson community to attend its annual Pass-in-Review, which will be held on Thursday, Nov. 15 at 8:00 PM in the Brooks Theater.

The Tiger Band is under the leadership of Dr. Richard Goodstein; Dr. Paul Buyer, percussion instructor; Tim Willis, band announcer.

The Tiger Band's new CD titled Shakin' the Southland is available at the Tiger Band Office for $15.00. To order by mail, send a check payable to CUTBA for $17.00 ($15.00 + $2.00 shipping in handling) to:

ATHLETICS

Tiger Pride

By Christy Duffner

For the first time in Clemson history, the Tiger athletic department launched a five-year $63 million athletics facilities improvement campaign. The campaign has pledges of $23.5 million to date through donations and Leadership Gifts from former Clemson athletes such as Leighton Cubbage and Billy Poe. Tiger Pride has funded Memorial Stadium and athletic facility upgrades that began in 2000.

The campaign is helping the university's athletic facilities roar into the 21st century. The improvements made will add to the pride that Clemson fans have toward their school and athletic teams. George Bennett, the executive director of IPTAY said it perfectly, "We want to take our facilities to the next level and show our pride by giving to this project."

There has been much progress since the campaign began, including a $1.6 million Memorial Stadium upgrade of the east end zone that has already been completed. Fans can enjoy a new, clearer sound system, new brick and wrought iron fencing, and a new display for "The Rock." Included is the replacement of asphalt with concrete and brick pavers, adjusted grades to meet American Disabilities Act (ADA) requirements, and an expanded area for TV and service truck parking.

On the south concourse of Memorial Stadium, $2.5 million has brought fans new restrooms, new concession stands, new graphics and signage, new lighting, novelty stands, ticket booths and grading, paving and fencing to match the east end zone. A $4 million renovation will match the north concourse with the south concourse with completion expected prior to the 2002 football season.

New lights for Memorial Stadium are planned to be installed by August 2002 and are estimated to cost $400,000. They will provide sufficient foot-candle levels for televised games without supplementary lighting. At $1 million, the Memorial Stadium/Frank Howard Field upgrade is scheduled to start in December 2001 and be completed by July 2002, which will bring the existing surface up to current accepted standards for Division I football competition. The work will include removing crown and establishing a flat playing surface, establishing a sand-based growing medium to facilitate drainage, installation of new grade specific irrigation, new brick and wrought iron fence at the east end zone and brick fascia on field walls. The renovation of the existing field dictates replacement of a fifty year-old storm sewer and sanitary sewer lines that serve all of campus and run directly underneath the playing surface.

One of the more exciting projects Tiger Pride is funding is the Athletic Heritage Center. At an estimated $20 million, it promises to be one of the best facilities in the country. It will offer players a new locker room, a state-of-the-art weight room, a training and taping area, an equipment area, a team meeting area and a museum with Clemson athletic memorabilia on display. Programming and schematic design is in progress with construction to begin in January 2003.

"The Heritage Center will benefit all 19 sports at Clemson, in addition to providing a first-class facility for the football program," said Clemson Athletic Director Bobby Robinson. "Olympic sport coaches will move into the McFadden Center, which will provide each coach a private office. This will also provide more office space for administrative functions such as sports information, video and compliance. Additionally, a weight room in the Heritage Center will free up the existing weight room for our Olympic Sports, benefiting all 600 student-athletes. Finally, the museum will be a showcase for all of our athletic programs and for the tradition established in these programs."

Head Football Coach Tommy Bowden is particularly enthusiastic about this project. "To have a championship program you need championship facilities," he said. "The Heritage Center will greatly enhance our program in general, but it will specifically be a huge boost to recruiting." With all its amenities, the Heritage Center is sure to impress recruits as well as fans, current athletes, and coaches.

Fans are not the only ones who have experienced the improvements Tiger Pride donations have brought. Athletes have enjoyed the renovations as well. Among the projects completed is a $750,000 athletic training room improvement which includes a hydrotherapy area, expanded taping and treatment areas, offices for the training staff, and total refurbishment of ceiling, lights, paint, and carpet.

Tiger golfers have enjoyed a $225,000 golf practice facility, which includes an indoor/covered hitting and putting area, film and computerized/video teaching area and lights for night use of the driving range. Tiger soccer players have benefited from what Tiger Pride donations produce as well. One hundred fifty thousand dollars has generated refurbished locker rooms for men's and women's soccer, which includes new shower/toilet facilities, new lockers, training and taping areas along with carpet and paint touch-ups throughout the facility. Jervy Gym has a new floor and additional bleachers thanks to $100,000 from Tiger Pride. Doug Kingsmore Baseball Stadium has built a new $80,000 batter's eye in centerfield.

Tiger athletes need an exceptional practicing turf as well. Tiger Pride has put $500,000 towards athletic practice field upgrades that included regarding, irrigating and sodding two new soccer practice fields and three football practice fields.

More state-of-the-art renovations are also scheduled. They include an indoor track, Memorial Stadium upgrade of the west end zone, new lights at Memorial Stadium, Memorial Stadium/Frank Howard Field upgrade, Littlejohn Coliseum renovation/annex, baseball stadium renovations, Athletic Heritage Center and Rock Norman outdoor track.

George Bennett said the goal of the Tiger Pride campaign is to take Clemson Athletics facilities to the next level.

The new $3 million 200-meter 6-lane indoor track, with construction beginning by January, 2002, will also have field event areas and will provide versatility and use in inclement weather by football, soccer, and baseball.

At an astounding $21.5 million, Littlejohn Coliseum is under construction to become one of the best facilities in the country. It will include improved sight lines and practice court, widened concourses and new men's and women's locker rooms, restroom upgrades and weight and training facilities, concession upgrades and recruiting areas, new seating, compliance with the ADA, new HVAC systems, and storage areas.

Three million dollars is going to the renovations of the baseball stadium to begin in June of 2002. The work will include the brick and wrought iron theme from the football stadium, additional restroom and concessions areas, enlarged dugouts, an expanded circulation area, and a cantilevered overhang for the Press Box in addition to an expansion of it. At a $100,000 estimate, the Rock Norman Outdoor Track is planning for a new press box.

Becoming part of the Tiger Pride Team is a great way to show pride in Clemson athletics while helping this dream become a reality. One way to help is by buying a brick for $250, which can be paid over the course of five years. The brick will have the donor's name inscribed on it, so in years to come, the donor's family will be able to see their name and feel proud for being a part of this awesome project.

To learn more about Tiger Pride, contact the IPTAY office at Clemson University at 864-656-2115 or visit www.clemson.tigers.com. Let's help support Clemson Athletics roar into the 21st century.

1981 Revisited

By David McGrew

Any Clemson football fan with a pulse on Jan. 1, 1982 remembers where they were when Clemson beat Nebraska in the Orange Bowl, 22-15. Climbing out onto the biggest stage in school history, the Tigers unceremoniously muscled past traditional national powers Nebraska, Georgia, Alabama, Pitt, Penn State and Texas to seize the 1981 National Championship.

However, the foundation of glory that memorable night was laid by a group of selfless student-athletes who were dedicated to the team concept. Such dedication is the calling card of champions.

"That Clemson team was the most special group of people I have ever been around, either before or since," said Bill Smith, a starting defensive end against Nebraska. "There were a lot of talented athletes on that team, but we never singled out individuals. We were a motivated, confident group that believed in ourselves. We focused on team and winning."

Smith's career as a student-athlete at Clemson ended that night, but it was just the beginning of his commitment to the university. He serves on the Clemson Board of Trustees after recently being elected to a second term. He is the CEO of Holmes Smith Developments in Columbia, a high-profile South Carolina commercial real estate development firm that he founded in 1993.

In 1981, though, he and Andy Headen led a group of four defensive ends including Joe Glenn and Mark Richardson who were going to be a target of the Nebraska offense in the 1982 Orange Bowl. The Cornhusker offense was led by future NFL stars Roger Craig, Irving Fryar, Mike Rozier and Outland Trophy winner Dave Rimington who anchored a massive offensive line.

The Nebraska offense of 1981 ranked second in the nation in rushing, averaging 330 yards per game. Tom Osborne's team was also sixth in total offense and eighth in scoring.

"Throughout our preparation for the game, the coaches made us very aware that Nebraska's offense was going to put a lot of pressure on the defensive ends," remembered Smith, who ended the season with 42 tackles and four sacks despite missing the first two games of the season because of an injury. "My job was to read the direction of the Nebraska tight end. Nebraska usually followed where he went. There was nothing fancy about their offense. They were big and just came right at you on every play."

Smith had endured an injury-plagued career and was a red-shirt senior in 1981. Yet, in his final game against Nebraska, he enjoyed perhaps his best career game with 10 tackles and batted down a Nebraska pass. Headen had five tackles and broke up Nebraska's last-second and desperation pass to end the game. The four defensive ends combined to record 21 tackles and broke up two passes.

"All of us took it upon ourselves to rise to the occasion," said Smith. "I am really proud to have been a part of that group. We had a lot of big names that deserved recognition on defense and we kind of felt like unsung heroes. Against Nebraska, though, it was our day to shine."

The Clemson defense limited Nebraska to just three plays on a staggering 8 of 12 possessions. The Cornhuskers managed to cross the 50-yard line only four times. In the first half, Nebraska went 19 minutes without a first down. In the third quarter, they went 14 minutes without a first down. Nebraska mustered only two scoring opportunities in the entire game.

Clemson's defensive team speed was the difference.

"There is no doubt our quickness was superior," said Smith. "Their center, Dave Rimington, had a difficult time containing William Perry and William Devane. Our defensive line controlled the line of scrimmage. Jeff Davis and our linebackers constantly beat Nebraska's offensive lineman to the point of attack. The secondary did a great job of run support all night. From the outset, Nebraska was reaching and grabbing trying to keep up."

On the very first Nebraska offensive series of the game, William Devane recovered a fumble at the Nebraska 28 that led to the first of three Donald Igwebuikwe field goals.

"It was big to force a fumble on the first series," said Smith who grew up in Duncan and was one of 63 Clemson players from the Carolinas and Georgia on the 1981 team. "It was a great confidence builder for us to shut down their high powered offense. I think we were all aware of the Nebraska mystique, and being so young, we wondered if we could play with them. After that first series, there were no more doubts."

However, Nebraska responded with a touchdown on the ensuing drive to take the lead, 7-3 with just under seven minutes left in the first quarter.

"That Nebraska drive was good news, bad news," said Smith, who played at 6-foot-5 and 220 pounds in 1981. "The bad news was they scored using a couple of big plays that included a halfback pass for the touchdown. The good news was we were stopping their base offense. From that point on, our confidence grew and we pretty much shut them down until their scoring drive in the fourth quarter."

On the next Nebraska offensive series, a sack by blitzing Tim Childers at the Nebraska five-yard line forced a punt from the end zone. The opportunistic Clemson offense capitalized on the ensuing field position to record Igwebuikwe's second field goal.

The next time Clemson got the ball, it marched 66 yards to the Nebraska 10-yard line before suffering its lone turnover of the game. A Nebraska defensive back wrestled Homer Jordan's pass away from Perry Tuttle in the end zone.

It was a momentary setback. By the end of the game, Clemson would be in Cornhusker territory on eight out of 12 possessions and convert on five of seven scoring opportunities. The interception and a 58-yard field goal attempt on the last play of the first half were the only misfires.

After the interception, the Tiger offense quickly got another chance when Davis, Clemson's leading tackler in the game with 14 and during the season with 175, recovered a fumble and Clemson led 12-7 at halftime.

"I will never forget our locker room at halftime," said Smith. "It was so emotionally high-charged. Everyone was excited. We had the lead, we were having fun, and we knew we could win the national championship. There was no tension."

The third quarter belonged to the Tigers.

In the sweltering Miami heat, Clemson's defense stopped Nebraska cold on its first two possessions. With Chuck McSwain and Jeff McCall carrying the ball and the passing combination of Jordan and Tuttle hooking up for 41 yards, Clemson embarked on a 12-play, 75-yard drive. On third-and-goal, Jordan connected with Perry Tuttle on a 13-yard touchdown pass. Bob Pauling's extra point gave the Tigers a 19-7 lead.

Throughout the game, the Clemson special teams performed flawlessly. On change of possessions, they bottled up Nebraska and protected the football for Clemson. Dale Hatcher's punting, Igwebuikwe's kickoffs, plus swarming coverage, gave Nebraska an average starting field position of its own 25. Nebraska never began a single offensive possession in Clemson territory.

The special teams put the Bill Smith, now a member of the Clemson Board of Trustees, had a career-high 10 tackles against Nebraska.

The Clemson defense forced an early turnover and set the tone for the remainder of the game.

enough to know that we weren't going to stop a team like Nebraska forever with their caliber of players," said Smith. "After the touchdown, Jeff Davis made sure everyone kept their head up. All season, we had been very business-like in our approach and there wasn't a lot of rah-rah stuff. We could tell Nebraska was recharged. It was man against man again and both teams knew the national championship was at stake."

It was the Clemson defense that responded.

The Tigers forced a Nebraska punt after only three plays. The Clemson offense slammed the door on any national championship suspense by keeping the ball until just six seconds remained. If you think Woodrow Dantzler has running ability today, you should have seen Jordan scramble with the National Championship on the line in the fourth quarter.

"Although I know it isn't true, it seemed like Homer Jordan ran down the clock all by himself," chuckled Smith. "The offensive line pushed Nebraska backwards and we kept the ball. I will always remember how exhausted and dehydrated Homer was after the game." Jordan had to receive an IV in the locker room after the game and was not available for interviews that night.

Bill Smith now lives in Columbia with his wife Beth and their two children, Catherine, age eight, and Cannon who is six. He has a successful business career and family life plus contributes his talent and energy to the future of Clemson University. Yet, even today, he proudly admits periodically stealing a moment from 20 years ago.

"Once in awhile, I'll find time to watch the tape from the game," he said. "Today, I think I appreciate what we accomplished even more than I did as a young kid. Our sense of pride grows even stronger as the years pass. Now that I fully understand how difficult it is to win a national championship, I have an even greater respect for what an amazing group of guys accomplished for themselves and Clemson University.

"I remember distinctly standing on the field right after the game was over, looking around the Orange Bowl and taking it all in," Smith continued. "I was feeling so many emotions...satisfaction, amazement, joy and a little sadness that my career at Clemson was over.

"It was a special day for me, for the defensive ends, for our defense, the entire team and Clemson people everywhere."

Every now and again, such memories deserve to be relived.

David McGrew was student assistant in the Clemson sports information office from 1976-81. He is now president of his own marketing agency in Akron, OH.

At age 33, Danny Ford became the youngest coach to win the national championship. It is a distinction he still holds today.

Clemson offense back in business after another three-and-out defensive stand. Billy Davis, led by an Orange shield of blockers, returned the Cornhusker punt 47 yards to the 22. The offense delivered another field goal that pushed the Clemson lead to 22-7.

Then, as the Orange Bowl entered the fourth quarter, #2 Georgia lost to Pittsburgh in the Sugar Bowl. Earlier in the day, #3 Alabama had also lost. Suddenly, #1 Clemson and #4 Nebraska were both playing for the national championship. Some thought the announced scores would motivate the Cornhuskers.

Early in the fourth quarter, the Cornhuskers marched 75-yards and scored on a 26-yard run by Roger Craig. His ensuing two-point conversion cut the Clemson lead to 22-15 with 9:15 left in the game. Nebraska got the ball back at its own 37 with 7:49 left.

"Despite our confidence, we were realistic

Terry Kinard

By Tim Bourret

Terry Kinard is the most decorated football player in Clemson history. Those honors will grow today when he is honored by the College Football Hall of Fame and inducted into the Clemson Ring of Honor.

A presentation will be made by the College Football Hall of Fame. Kinard will be inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in December at the annual National Football Foundation ceremonies in New York. He will also be honored at the College Football Hall of Fame in South Bend, IN in August 2002.

The Ring of Honor ceremony will also take place today at Death Valley prior to the Florida State game. It will be a special day for Kinard as we celebrate the 20-year anniversary of Clemson's National Championship, the greatest team accomplishment in Clemson football history.

Kinard, who played for the Tigers from 1978-82 and was named National Defensive Player of the Year by CBS Sports as a senior, will be just the second Clemson player in history to be honored by the College Football Hall of Fame, the first since Banks McFadden in 1959.

Ironically, Kinard burst on the national scene in South Bend in 1979. Starting as a freshman, Kinard had two fourth-quarter interceptions and seven tackles overall to lead Clemson to a 16-10 victory over the Irish. Now 22 years later, he will be inducted in the College Football Hall of Fame, which is located just two miles from Notre Dame Stadium.

"This is a dream come true," said Kinard. "It is something you don't expect, but when it does happen you are thrilled. It is a great honor when you consider that only one other Clemson player has been named to the Hall of Fame. To be alongside a legend like Banks McFadden means a great deal.

"Clemson gave me the opportunity. I was very fortunate, I could not have picked a better place to go to school. I played with a lot of great players at Clemson, especially guys on our defense like Jeff Davis, Jeff Bryant and many others. I certainly could not have made it to the Hall of Fame without the great players we had at Clemson at that time.

"I also have to thank Coach (Danny) Ford and the other coaches. I especially have to thank coach Willie Anderson, who recruited me. Years later he gave me the opportunity to go to Oklahoma and serve on his (high school) coaching staff. He impressed upon me the importance of finishing my degree, which I did (from Langston University in Oklahoma)."

Kinard is also grateful to the people at Clemson who have had a positive effect on his career. One of those people is Bert Henderson, associate executive director of IPTAY. "My freshman year I was red-shirted and I needed to have shoulder surgery," said Kinard. "Bert drove me to the hospital. I wasn't thrilled about the prospect of having surgery—not at all! He had to talk me into it.

"We sat down and talked about it a long time, and he convinced me that it was something I needed to do for my own good. I went ahead and had it done, and Bert gave me a lot of support and inspiration. That was a rough time for me. I had to sit out and redshirt, while the rest of the team went on to an 11-1 season (1978). But, sitting out that year was the best thing that could have happened to me because of maturity. I really wasn't ready physically, to compete as a freshman."

Kinard also credits Bill D'Andrea, currently Clemson's associate athletic director for student-athlete enrichment and senior associate athletic director, for encouraging him to go back to school and finish his degree requirements. "Bert and Bill D'Andrea stayed on me about getting my degree. Bill was on me all the time. No matter where he saw me, that was the first thing that came out of his mouth. And, it was the same with my mom."

The door then opened in Oklahoma when Anderson offered Kinard a job and an opportunity to get his degree. "It has made a world of difference. I am sure it made a difference in me getting into the Hall of Fame. Coach Anderson cared about me many years after I left Clemson and it says a lot about him and the people at Clemson."

Kinard had outside motivating factors, but in the end he had to do it himself. "It was pretty tough, after being out of school for so long. It was very different. But, in a sense, it was also much easier. When you come in as a freshman, you're not very disciplined towards school. Coming back, I was more mature and I knew how to go about studying and planning my time. I found myself staying on top of things, rather than putting everything off until the last minute." Today, Kinard works in Atlanta serving in management for the Burger King Corporation.

A native of Sumter, SC, Kinard was a first-team Associated Press All-American in 1981 and 1982, the only two-time first-team AP All-American in school history. He was in fact a unanimous selection in 1982, the only unanimous first-team All-American in Clemson history.

Kinard will be inducted into the Clemson Ring of Honor prior to today's game against Florida State.

Kinard led a Clemson defense that ranked in the top 10 in scoring defense in 1981 and 1982.

FACTS ON TERRY KINARD

- Will be inducted into College Football Hall of Fame in December 2001
- Still only unanimous first-team All-American in Clemson history (1982)
- Named National Defensive Player of the Year by CBS Sports in 1982
- Starting defensive back on USA Today's College Football team of the 1980s
- Named to All-Century team of college football by Sports Illustrated
- Two-time first-team Associated Press All-American (1981 and 1982)
- Inducted into the Clemson Hall of Fame in 1992
- Named to Clemson Centennial Team in 1996
- Set Clemson record for tackles by a defensive back (294)
- Still holds Clemson record and ranks second in ACC history in interceptions (17)
- First-round Draft choice of the New York Giants, 10th overall selection
- Played 8 years in the NFL and was named to Pro Bowl in 1988
- Named to NFL All-Rookie team in 1983

Kinard recorded 17 interceptions during his Clemson career, still the high mark in school history and second in ACC history. He ranked in the top 15 in the nation in interceptions in 1981 and 1982 and was a major reason Clemson had a combined record of 21-1-1 over those two years. Clemson's defense ranked in the top 10 in the nation in scoring defense each year. He was Clemson's second leading tackler on the 1981 National Championship team and led the 1982 squad that finished eighth in the final Associated Press poll.

Kinard rates the national championship experience as the highlight of his football career. "I was very fortunate to have gone from Clemson to play in the NFL. But I'd have to say that my experience at Clemson, playing with that group of guys on the National Championship team was more exciting than anything I did on any other level. It definitely made an impact on my life. The closeness of that group and the experiences we shared will never be forgotten.

"At the beginning of that year, none of us had any idea that the season would turn out the way it did. I'm not sure at what point it started to sink in that we were going to be in a position to compete for the National Championship. I'm not sure any of us were really thinking that way. But, we knew we were part of something special because of the way we won games that year. We won some close, tough games.

"As the season progressed, we came to believe that every time we stepped out on the field we were going to win. Part of that was the closeness of the group. Part of it was that we had some players who could really play. You don't make it through a season like that without great players, guys who can make things happen."

At the conclusion of his Clemson career, Kinard was chosen in the first round of the NFL draft by the New York Giants, the 10th overall pick of the draft. He played seven years for the Giants, including the team's 1986 Super Bowl Championship season. Kinard was named to the NFL All-Rookie team in 1983 and the Pro Bowl in 1988.

Since his retirement from the game, Kinard was named to Sports Illustrated's All-Century team of college football. In 2000 he was named Clemson's top player of the 20th Century by CNNsi.com. He was also chosen to the USA Today All-Decade team for the 1980s. In 1996 he was named to Clemson's Centennial Team and received more votes than any other defensive player.

"Terry Kinard was a dominating player because he was a great tackler who also could break on the ball and make the interception," said Danny Ford, who was Kinard's Head Coach his entire career at Clemson. "I haven't seen a player who could dominate a game from the secondary like he could. He covered a lot of ground, he made a coach feel secure about the secondary.

"He had the ability to be a dominant player from the time he was a freshman. You don't see a lot of freshman safeties take over a game in Notre Dame Stadium, but he did that when we defeated Notre Dame in 1979.

"When you look at what Terry Kinard accomplished individually at Clemson and what Clemson did as a team during his career, you can see that he is most qualified to be in the College Football Hall of Fame."

The Last Word

By Kim Kelly

"God bless you. Thank you for what you are doing. I am so proud of you because you followed your heart."

Oprah Winfrey to Jeff Davis, April 23, 2001

Sometimes it just clicks between some people. It happened to Joanie Davis some 22 years ago, it happened to this author more than 20 years ago and it happened just this past April to Oprah Winfrey while taping her world-renowned talk show.

For lack of a better term, I will call "it" that old Jeff Davis "spirit." It comes from deep within his soul and when the "right" connection is made, one experiences an overwhelming sense of feeling truly blessed.

No doubt his mother versed him well in the technique of making a good first impression, for that he surely does, but what one feels is so much more than that. And, as Jeff Davis, the ordained minister admits, "if you know the spiritual side of Jeff Davis you know the real Jeff Davis." According to his wife, Joanie, "He is the same all the time, genuine, passionate and fun-loving. At home, at work or on the football field he always has these characteristics."

In this author's case, the maturity, passion, spirituality and decisiveness that led me to nickname J.D., "The Judge" for All-America promotions in 1981, first impressed me when I interviewed him for the Clemson vs. Georgia football program in September, 1981.

Davis explained the evolution of his Oprah experience in the following manner. "A phone call from Faith Harris of Harpo Productions came to my office one day last February. It seems this representative from Oprah's Angel Network had seen the USA Today article on the Call Me Mister Program and she wanted to know more about the program. After talking to me she said her organization would like to consider the Call Me Mister program as a potential recipient for the "Use Your Life" award."

I guess from that, one could surmise that Davis' "spirit" even travels through the telephone lines!

At any rate, Davis' road to the Oprah Show was on the fast track. "As a potential recipient for the award, I had to fill out a detailed application explaining the Call Me Mister Program and my role in it," said Davis. "A call came from The Angel Network again a few weeks later informing me that we had been selected to receive the honor and $100,000 award."

Taping for the South Carolina program description segment needed to be organized and shot the very next day. Overnight Davis and his staff notified the young men who are Davis' Misters and the next day footage was shot at Claflin College, Benedict College and Carver Elementary School. "I left my house that morning at five and returned home at 10 that evening," Davis recalls. "Taping for the Oprah Show was an exciting, demanding process. The entire experience was completed in a quick fashion, but it was done with excellence all the way through."

perience continued past the South Carolina taping day, he maintains it is the Misters and not himself personally who are the real heroes of the story. "These men can walk into any arena and succeed," said Davis. "They are realizing a dream. Their education and ability to educate is a source of empowerment."

As he continued, Davis' words took on an almost preacher-like passion. "I love being a part of encouraging and inspiring young men to become elementary school teachers. Helping these young men to earn their degrees, become role models and really be in charge, that is fun to me. I can't wait for this first group to graduate and get certified."

In mid-April the fun part of the Oprah experience culminated as Davis, his wife and five of his "Misters" flew to Chicago to meet Oprah, accept the award and tape the show. "The entire time we were in Chicago we received first-class treatment. Everyone associated with Oprah's staff made sure our visit was a special one.

"Accepting the award was a defining moment in my life," Davis recalled. "I returned to Clemson University to maximize the degree I earned. It was one thing for me to experience success as an athlete here, but quite another experience for me to achieve success as a former student-athlete and businessman. The role of a student really means something now, and it is something to be embraced. As far as I am concerned, I won another National Championship the day I accepted the "Use Your Life Award" on Oprah's Angel Network."

Where does the Call Me Mister Program Field Director go from here? The television spotlight is gone, but the "spirit" that drives the man, the minister, the husband, the father and the friend soars farther than ever. "God has purposed all of us for something great," stated Davis exuberantly. He has achieved success on the gridiron, and among the education ranks, he has been a successful church youth minister and he had been sought after as a motivational speaker. Is the best yet to come?

So, what do you make of this mix? A former Clemson and professional football veteran turned minister turned field director full of "spirit" is called by "Faith" of The Angel Network to garnish blessings and pennies from Heaven from a famous star in the media who is known for her kind soul and compassion.

Perhaps Della Reese or the writers of the CBS television show, "Touched By An Angel" will soon be calling Davis' office too? No matter if they don't because elementary school students in South Carolina will soon have education "angels" in their midst if Jeff Davis has his say.

Remember, nobody ever questions, "The Judge."
